Transition of Treasurers

The coming retirement of Vice President and Treasurer Harold E. Manley (above) and that of Associate Treasurer George W. Pepper III, were marked by the award of citations to both at the March 19 Trustees Executive Board meeting. Later, the Board unanimously elected their successors: John Pyne, Jr., as treasurer and Larry A. Keinath as assistant treasurer (page 2).

Harold Manley will retire March 31 after 43 years of service broken only by his World War II stint as first sergeant in the Army Finance Corps in the South Pacific, 1943-46. He began at Penn as an A-3 assistant bookkeeper in 1938, enrolling also in Wharton Evening School, where he received a certificate of proficiency in accounts and finance just before leaving for war duty. On his return as assistant controller in 1946, he re-enrolled at Wharton Evening School and completed the bachelor's degree in 1951. He was appointed controller in 1954 and business manager in 1961. Two years later he became the University's chief financial officer on his election as vice president. The additional post of treasurer was added in 1975.

Mr. Manley received his school's Alumni Award of Merit in 1977.

George Pepper was recorded as a Penn man from birth: he was the first baby born to the Class of 1916. He took his own degree from Wharton in 1940, and after service as a Navy lieutenant commander in World War II he was with General Steel Castings until he returned to Penn in 1966 as assistant to the treasurer. Mr. Pepper was promoted to assistant treasurer in 1968 and to associate treasurer in 1975. An oarsman as an undergraduate, he has been active in the Friends of Rowing throughout his career.

Rethinking Philadelphia: Stage One, March 27

Penn and Temple will launch a year-long, city-wide debate and analysis of Philadelphia's problems and plans for its future starting Friday, March 27, with a public conference in Zellerbach Theatre at the Annenberg Center.

"Philadelphia: Past, Present, and Future" is a three-stage project that culminates with the 300th anniversary of Philadelphia's founding and the start of Century IV in October 1982.

Coordinated by the Center for Philadelphia Studies at SPUP, on behalf of the two universities, the project is funded by CBS, Inc., and the Pennsylvania Humanities Council.

At Friday's 10 a.m. session will be Mayor William Green, City Council President Joseph Coleman, Senator Arlen Specter, and Congressmen William Gray, III, and Robert Edgar. President Sheldon Hackney will welcome participants, and Temple President Marvin Wachman will host a reception at the end of the day.

At 2 p.m. in separate workshops, 12 task forces will begin discussing urban problems such as economic development, education, energy, transportation, race, poverty and unemployment.

"Historic changes in Philadelphia's economy and population," said Dr. Theodore Hershberg, director of the Center, "have left a legacy of poverty and unemployment. Potentially severe cutbacks in federal funding will greatly compound these ills. Together they pose grave problems for the city's social peace and economic well-being." With scarcity confronting us on both the local and national level, he added, collective effort is needed — but politics is still dominated by interest groups. "Philadelphia: Past, Present, and Future" is designed to bring people and their ideas together.

During the project's first phase, the 12 individual task forces will examine specific problems. Each will be led by specialists and have members representing various segments of society. (Eight Penn people are among the members: Drs. Elijah Anderson, William Grigsby, Stephen Feldman, Marvin Wolfgang, Anita Summers, Vukan Vuchic, W. Bruce Allen, and Bettina Yaffe. For details of workshop topics, contact the Center for Philadelphia Studies, Ext. 8713.)

Each task force will issue standing invitations to concerned citizens to attend its public meetings, receive the project newsletter, and offer advice and information. In issuing reports for their problem areas, the task forces do not have to achieve consensus on issues, but their reports must reflect the diversity of opinion among task force members.

The project's second stage is termed "Integration." In it, nationally prominent consult-

OF RECORD

Notice Concerning the Code of Academic Integrity

In view of the general concern that has arisen regarding the Code of Academic Integrity, President Hackney here publishes the following statement:

1. Since the new Code of Academic Integrity and those portions of the Judicial Charter that relate to academic integrity were never approved by the several Faculties, they are not now in effect nor have they been in effect at any time.

2. The old Judicial Charter and Code, given on pages 94-101 of Intro to Penn, 1980-1981, was in force until January 11, 1981, the day before the beginning of the spring term.

3. Five deans and four student leaders met on March 13, 1981, and a majority voted to recommend an interim procedure for the period beginning January 12, 1981, and continuing until a new Code and Charter are adopted by the several Faculties. This interim procedure maintains the old Code and slightly modifies that portion of the Charter that deals with academic integrity so as to simplify the method used to appoint members of the Honor Court. The deans, on the authorization of their Faculties and in cooperation with the Judicial Administrator, are implementing these procedures.

4. It was the hope of all concerned that we are now in a position to work constructively upon a new version of the Code and Charter, one that will be acceptable to both students and the Faculties.

ants will speak at 10 consecutive conferences throughout the fall, providing advice on how other cities are dealing with these problems. At another Stage Two conference in January, 1982, Philadelphians offering distinct perspectives by race, class, ethnicity, religion, profession and economic sector will comment on the task force reports.

In the project's third stage, the task forces will reconvene to consider their initial recommendations and create action agendas. "The project must result in more than volumes sitting on a shelf collecting dust," Dr. Hershberg said. Throughout the project, a link to a national audience via National Public Radio will be provided by "Forum: USA," a joint venture of the Aspen Institute for Humanistic Studies and the United Way of America.

TRUSTEES

Tuition Up 15% . . . Dental Plan Go-Ahead

At the March 19 Executive Board meeting of the Trustees, tuition and general fee for 1981-82 were set at $6,900 for undergraduates and $7,245 for graduate students, in each case an increase of 15 percent.

For undergraduates in the Ivy League, only Columbia now has a lower figure ($6,700, up 17 percent). Princeton and Yale also kept their increases to 15 percent, but started with higher tuitions. Since the rest of the Ivies had both higher bases and higher increases, Chairman Paul F. Miller, Jr., projected no effect on recruiting competition.

But since financial aid costs rise with tuition, Mr. Miller added, the University will realize only 73 percent of the increase.

In a budget update, Vice President Jon C. Strauss said the current-year performance remains on track, with income from investments offsetting a problem in financial aid that appeared early in the year. For FY 1982, what seemed a $6 million gap last fall rose to a more than $9.5 million gap this term, but has now receded to about $5 million — and this problem has been parceled out to centers and schools where there is a good prognosis that it can be solved.

Dental Care to Come

In other actions, the Board voted:

- To direct the Director of Personnel to "reduce to writing" a dental plan based on a document which gives two options (at the University Dental Care Center, or via Prudential Insurance Company) in which the University pays the full $9/month for individual coverage of employees and half the additional $19/month for family coverage. Details of the plans will be announced shortly.

- To reappoint Samuel H. Ballam, Jr., as chairman of the HUP Trustee Board; reappoint G. Morris Dorrance, Jr., Margaret Mainwaring, Anthony Minisi and F. Stanton Moyer to the Board; and add William D. Patterson as a new member.

- To add Vernon Jordan, president of the National Urban League and 1981 Commencement speaker (Almanac January 20), to the School of Social Work's Board of Overseers.

- To renovate Leidy Laboratory at $3.12 million, and to upgrade facilities in pharmacology ($2.475 million) and human genetics ($4.75 million), with funds in hand or assured for each project and with academic rationale for the expenditures discussed at the March 19 meeting.

- To lease for SEAS a Univac 1100/61 computer, replacing the overloaded Univac 90/70 and tripling the capacity for engineering student/faculty and school uses, and providing some capacity for use by other schools.

Mr. Pyne and Mr. Keinath

In view of Harold Manley's and George Pepper's retirements (page 1), the Board elected John Pyne, Jr., as treasurer and Larry A. Keinath as assistant treasurer.

Mr. Pyne joined the University 18 years ago as assistant director of accounting. He later served as assistant comptroller, and since 1972 has been director of budget administration. "He has an almost encyclopedic knowledge of the many funds for which the treasurer has stewardship responsibilities," the Board's resolution of appointment says, "and he is respected by his colleagues for his analytical skill and fundamental integrity." Mr. Pyne is a graduate of Burdett College who was with Lybrand, Ross Bros., and Montgomery before he came to Penn.

Mr. Keinath is a CPA who took his degree at Penn State and was with Coopers and Lybrand before joining the University as director of internal audit in 1978.

Financial Progress

Chairman Miller announced that gifts and pledges are flowing some 20 percent ahead of schedule: with a goal of $46 million for the year, they now total $41,597,535 and might reach $55 million by June 30. Cash receipts on pledges of more than $31 million are about 12 percent ahead of projections. "We were afraid that following a $255 million campaign [that brought in over $259 million], there would be a letdown," said Mr. Miller. "The development office deserves tremendous credit, and so do the faculty who have worked on this."

In investments, Penn's Associated Investment Fund has gained 7.4 percent since December 31, while Standard & Poor's advanced only 1 percent for the period. Five-year rolling records dating back to the five years ending 1975 show Penn steadily improving its performance, and advancing its standing compared to other universities in NACUBO (National Association of College and University Business Officers) reports.

President's Lecture

The 1980-81 President's Lecture will be given by Dr. Benjamin F. Hammond, professor and chairman of microbiology in the School of Dental Medicine. The President's Lecture Series was inaugurated in 1974 to give eminent members of the faculty an opportunity to speak on subjects related to their special interests in a forum open to the campus community at large.
