Pullout: Planning for 21st Century:
Final Reports of 10 Groups

$10 Million for ASC and SAS: Annenberg Pledge Now $20.5 Million

Adding $10 million that will provide $6.5 million for the Annenberg School for Communication and $3.5 million for the School of Arts and Sciences, the Hon. Walter H. Annenberg has raised his share in the $1 billion Campaign for Penn to $20.5 million.

His earlier pledges in this Campaign were $10 million to SAS earmarked for the history department, and $500,000 to endow the Gloria T. Chisum Fellowship, which will annually support a doctoral student of African-American descent in experimental psychology, biology, physiology or biochemistry.

Earnings on the newest $10 million gift to endowment will be used at the discretion of the deans of the two schools.

SAS Hugo Sonnenschein said he will apply the gift (1) to recruit and support the work of outstanding science faculty, including provisions for state-of-the-art equipment and research facilities; and (2) to enhance undergraduate education with the focus on curricular innovations, writing, and the freshman year.

Dean Kathleen Hall Jamieson will use the Annenberg School's share for special initiatives chosen in consultation with President Sheldon Hackney, to "magnify [the School's] influence through use of satellite transmission and an expanded use of computerized informational searches and laser disc communication."

No total is known for the gifts of Mr. Annenberg, a Wharton alumnus and former Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, and his wife, the Hon. Leonore Annenberg, the former U.S. Protocol Officer and a co-chair of the Campaign for Penn. They are believed to be the largest donors in the history of Penn. Some of their support has been anonymous, although Mr. Annenberg's identity as the mysterious "Mr. Pennsylvania" who matched all fellow donors' increases in annual giving for several years was later made known.

Mr. Annenberg, a communications industry leader, was the founding donor of the communications school here in 1959, when he also created and endowed The Annenberg Schools of Communication, a non-profit corporation that supports and co-governs both Penn's and USC's communications schools. In addition to endowing the School's programs, and the construction and later expansion of the building that houses it, Mr. Annenberg gave Penn the Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts—initially operated by the School but now reporting to the Provost, and endowed several chairs during the Campaign for the Eighties.

"The hundreds of students who received PhDs and MAs at the Annenberg School and the thousands whose lives they daily affect testify to the power of the Annenbergs' vision," Dean Jamieson said.

"Ambassador and Mrs. Annenberg have made it possible for the School to contribute importantly to the national dialogue on electoral reform, on the impact of televised violence, and on such issues as privacy in a technologically intrusive age. Their generosity has enabled our students and faculty to undertake research that has helped save infants who otherwise might have died of diarrhea and to educate vulnerable people in other countries about the threat of AIDS."

The Annenbergs at ASC's 25th Anniversary

$372 Million and Counting: The $10 million Annenberg pledge for SAS and the Annenberg School brings the Campaign for Penn to $372 million in the $1 billion, five-year drive launched October 13, Vice President Rick Nahm said.

It is the first multimillion-dollar pledge made outside the pre-campaign "nucleus fund," which contained Mr. Annenberg's first $10 million pledge and several other highly publicized "blockbuster" gifts by alumni and/or trustees: In the $344 million nucleus fund total were major gifts by Saul H. Steinberg ($25 million, divided as $10 million to the Wharton School and $15 million to SAS/English), Ron Perelman ($10 million for the Revlon [Campus] Center), George and Diane Weiss ($6.25 million endowing the GSE deanship, the Hum Rosen chair in SAS and a Wharton financial research center), and Jon Huntsman ($4 million for Wharton's new program in global leadership).

OF RECORD

Following is Provost's Memorandum #7-89, with its covering memorandum, sent to all Academic Deans on November 29, 1989.

To the Deans: From time to time over the past year we have discussed the matter of full-time members of the faculty accepting full-time positions at other institutions. A draft policy was circulated to you and to the Faculty Senate for review. The attached policy statement has been approved by the Senate leadership as well as by ten of the deans. It is to go into effect immediately.—M.A.

Acceptance of Appointments Elsewhere

Any full-time member of the standing faculty, associate faculty or academic support staff who accepts a full-time position at another institution must notify his or her department chair and dean of that act at the time it takes place. Unless a leave of absence has been granted, the appointment at this University terminates as of the beginning of the new appointment.

In the case of tenured faculty who wish to accept a full-time tenured position elsewhere, this University will not grant leaves of absence for periods after the acceptance of the new appointment.

—Michael Aiken, Provost

Search for New Ombudsman

Dr. Susan Wachter is returning to full-time teaching and research in finance at Wharton when her term as University Ombudsman expires June 30, 1990, and President Sheldon Hackney has opened the search for a successor.

"We are deeply grateful for the diligence, fairness and sensitivity that Professor Wachter has brought to the Office of the Ombudsman and the community during her three years of service as Ombudsman," Dr. Hackney said. "While we regret losing her invaluable help, her service has been exemplary and we understand her wish to turn to other interests. I know that in doing so she will continue to serve the University with proficiency, understanding and compassion."

January 31 Deadline: Nominations and applications of tenured faculty members should be submitted to the President at 100 College

Speaking Out

Open Letter to President Hackney: On Salvador

The leaders of a number of U.S. universities are being urged by faculty members to express their concern over the brutal murder on November 16 of Ignacio Ellacuría, Rector of the Universidad Centroamericana Jose Simenon Canas in San Salvador, along with five other professors of the University and two other persons, by gunmen linked with the armed forces of the Salvadoran government.

Ellacuría was a major theologian and influential philosopher. The Central American University also publishes Estudios Centroamericanos, which provides regularly the most serious and informed analyses of the social, economic, and political scene in El Salvador. Its issue, "El Salvador 1984," published in English in NACLA Report on the Americas (March-April 1984), still provides one of the best systematic analyses of the lack of democracy in El Salvador. The writings of Ellacuría and these studies of El Salvador are used in courses on philosophy, theology, and Central American politics at colleges and universities in the Delaware Valley.

The most recent murders have not been isolated events: the University of San Salvador was sacked and closed by the army in 1981, it was occupied and placed under continuous army surveillance in 1988, and dozens of students and faculty have been beaten, tortured, and murdered over the past eight years. This action is therefore not an anomaly, it represents a long-standing policy of an army that former Ambassador to El Salvador Robert White refers to as a "clique of assassins" who "enjoy absolute immunity from legal action" (Op. ed. New York Times, 11/21/89).

We wish to point out, also, that the Salvadoran army and government receive massive aid and protection from the United States government. Given these considerations, and given that the meaning of our own institution cannot be disconnected from the world-wide dimensions of the university, so that an attack on the one university is an attack on us all; we wish to urge you, as President of the University of Pennsylvania, to take a public position through a statement sent to the relevant administration, congressional, press and other university personnel on these points:

1. urging the U.S. government to withhold aid from the Salvadoran government until a complete and judicially satisfactory investigation has been carried out and justice (from an international perspective) done;
2. urging the U.S. government to halt military aid to a government that either directly or indirectly participates in the destruction of the university life of its country, or is unable to prevent armed violence and ongoing threats against the university;
3. identifying with the call of Rector Ellacuría for negotiations aiming simultaneously to end armed hostilities and to address the deep-rooted condition of injustice that marks life in El Salvador.

Please give serious attention to this proposal. We will be happy to discuss it further and cooperate in any way.

Hall/6380, no later than January 31, 1990.

An outline for job responsibilities for the post can be found on page 16 of the Handbook for Faculty and Academic Administrators (1989), available in departmental offices, Van Pelt Reference, and the Office of the Secretary, 121 College Hall. Questions may be addressed to Dr. Nicholas D. Constan, Jr., in the President's Office (Ext. 4357).

Special Meeting of Steering

A special meeting of the Steering Committee of University Council has been called for Wednesday, December 6, to consider whether there should be a discussion at the December 13 University Council meeting about the process for selecting honorary degree recipients. Items presently on the agenda are Safety, the Campus Center, Diversity Education and the deterioration of recreational facilities.

President's Advisory Group

In their introduction to the Final Reports of the Ten Working Groups (Planning for the Twenty-First Century, starting opposite), President Sheldon Hackney and Provost Michael Aiken take note of the role of a new body, the President's Advisory Group.

It is made up of the Council of Deans and the senior nonacademic administrators who meet regularly with the President. The two continue to meet separately but as the Advisory Group they now also meet jointly about once a month. The twelve academic deans are:

Dr. Kathleen Hall Jamieson, Annenberg
Dr. Hugo F. Sonnenschein, SAN
Dr. Raymond Fonseca, Dental
Dr. Marvin Lazerson, Education
Dr. Joseph Bordogna, Engineering
Lee G. Copeland, Fine Arts
Colin S. Diver, Law
Dr. William N. Kelley, Medicine
Dr. Claire M. Fagin, Nursing
Dr. Michael J. Austin, Social Work
Dr. Edwin J. Andrews, Veterinary Medicine
Russell E. Palmer, Wharton

The senior administrators in addition to President Hackney (who chairs) and Provost Aiken are Dr. Marna Whittington, Senior Vice President; Glen Stine, Executive Director of Resource Planning & Budget; Rick Nahm, Vice President Development & University Relations; Dr. Robert Zemsky, Director of Institute for Research on Higher Education/Director of Planning; Dr. John Wells Gould, Executive Director of the Office of the President; and a Vice President for Finance to be named.

Holiday Gift Ideas from A to Z

This year the Almanac staff, somewhat busy with the Ten Working Papers that are over 150 authors' year-end gift to the University community, sent our nimble student aides to do the traditional holiday shopping guide. So complete were their browsings that no letter of the alphabet was left out of their notes. (Some of the goods are sold in more places than those where they first found them, of course—and every shop had more intriguing things than there was space to mention. Treat this as a list of possibilities, and see the key at the end to decipher locations.)

Safety Tip: Think about your safety and be cautious at all times. It doesn't always happen to the other person, don't become a victim of crime. In most cases, burglars and thieves are as successful as you allow them to be. Don't give them a helping hand or become apathetic. Crime can happen to you.
