Honoring Martin Luther King: January 19-22

In observance of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, the University will honor the civil rights leader with a four-day program starting Sunday, January 19. The commemoration—an annual event at Penn for more than a decade—begins with a candlelight vigil at 8 p.m. on Sunday, gathering at Du Bois College House and proceeding to College Green led by the Penn Gospel Choir.

On Monday the University-sponsored events include a lunchtime program (right) and an evening one in which Dr. King's daughter, the producer/actress Yolanda King (left), will give the keynote address "A Dream Is Still A Dream." The evening program begins at 7 p.m., in the Annenberg Center's Zellerbach Theatre. For a list of other lectures and of student- and faculty-led discussion groups on civil rights during the four days, please see page 6. All events are open to the University community and the public without charge.

To The University Community:

All members of the University community are invited to a celebration of the life of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. on Monday, January 20, 1992, from noon-2 p.m. at the Penn Tower Hotel, sponsored by the African-American Association of Administrators, Faculty and Staff.

Managers are asked to extend the regular lunch break by an hour in order to allow interested employees to attend the commemoration.

Football Coach: Al Bagnoli

Al Bagnoli, head football coach at Union College in Schenectady for the past ten years and a three-time winner of the Eastman Kodak Award, has been named to succeed Gary Steele as head football coach at Penn. Mr. Steele resigned November 26 after three years as head coach.

Mr. Bagnoli, who took his degree in physical education and history at Central Connecticut State College in 1974, and his master's in educational administration at Albany State in 1976, will be the 21st head football coach in the 115-year history of football at Penn.

"We are very excited to have a man of Al Bagnoli's stature," said Director of Athletics Paul Rubincam. "He comes to Penn from Union College, which has an outstanding academic reputation. He has consistently produced winning football teams without sacrificing the institution's academic standards. Obviously, he is well versed in recruiting high-quality student athletes in a need-based financial aid setting." Mr. Bagnoli's career record is 86-19-0, and his .819 winning percentage ranks fifth among all active collegiate coaches. After joining Union in 1977 as defensive coordinator and defensive backfield coach, he became head coach in 1982 and turned in ten winning seasons—one of them 10-0 (1989). Union went to the NCAA playoffs in six of his ten seasons.

Penn's Way: $400,241 from 3,822 Donors

As of January 14, the Penn's Way '92 $400,000 goal was reached as faculty and staff came through with pledges of $400,241, a record in charitable giving at Penn. This exceeds last year's total of $371,489. 15 units exceeded their goal in this campaign.

Dr. Ray Fonseca, Penn's Way committee chair, thanked the 3,822 Penn employees who responded to this year's charitable appeal. "Despite a very sluggish economy, we've raised over 9 percent more than last year," he noted. Dr. Fonseca praised the dedication and spirit of the campaign contributors and solicitors whose unflagging work made the campaign such a success. "It just goes to show what wonderful things can happen on Penn's campus when we all pull together to help those in need," he said.

The Senate Executive Committee has created a Senate Ad Hoc Committee for a speedier "Just Cause Procedure" that is charged (1.) To review the just cause procedure and to make recommendations to modify the procedure so as to produce results in a reasonable length of time, and (2.) To complete the task and report back to the Chair of the Faculty Senate by mid-February 1992, so that the Senate Executive Committee and the full Faculty Senate can deal with the recommendations.

Morris Mendelson (Finance)	Joyce E. Thompson (Nursing)
Robert E. Davies (Animal Biology), Chair

The Committee will hold open meetings on Thursday, January 23, 1992, and Tuesday, January 28, 1992. Both meetings will be from 4-5 p.m. in Room 152, School of Veterinary Medicine. The current procedure for Suspension or Termination of Faculty for Just Cause is described on pages 47 to 51 of the 1991 edition of the Handbook for Faculty and Academic Administrators. Anyone who wishes to make recommendations to us is invited to come to the above open meetings or to write, phone or talk to any of the members of the Committee as soon as possible.

AIDS Awareness Week

The University community is made up of thousands of individuals whose interests and activities are wide-ranging. As members of this community, we have a responsibility to work together and achieve goals for the common good. This is true for any issue, but especially true for an issue of such grave importance, like HIV infection and AIDS.

The week of February 10, 1992 is officially AIDS Awareness Week. This week is a time not only of responsibility, but also of opportunity. Everyone in the community is encouraged to take some initiative and do programming concerning HIV and AIDS. In doing so we not only educate our own community, but we also create an environment that is filled with caring and support.

The Office of Health Education in Student Health is sponsoring programs for AIDS Awareness Week, as well as helping to coordinate the efforts of any person or group interested in doing a program for the community. If you would like your event included in a university-wide calendar of events for Awareness Week activities call the office by January 31. Please contact the Office of Health Education in Student Health at 662-7166 if you have any questions or suggestions.

OF RECORD

Revised Policy on Smoking in Nonresidential Buildings

This policy was issued by the Office of Human Resources and is effective February 1, 1992.

704.1 Policy

It is the policy of the University of Pennsylvania that smoking is not permitted in nonresidential University buildings except in designated areas. There will be at least one (1) designated area per building for reasons of fire safety as well as to accommodate the needs of smokers unless a "smoke free" building is designated in accordance with Section 704.3.

704.2 Designated Areas

It is the responsibility of Deans, Vice Presidents, and Resource Center Directors, or their designees, to designate Smoking Permitted areas and to ensure that an adequate number of locations is assigned and equipped to accommodate the needs of smokers, taking into account the needs of persons with disabilities.*

It is also their responsibility to assure that appropriate signs are posted in their buildings. Standardized signs are available through Physical Plant.

Classrooms: Consistent with a policy of no smoking except in designated areas, smoking is not permitted in classrooms.

Work Areas: Faculty and staff in fully enclosed private offices may designate their offices smoking or nonsmoking areas.

In deciding whether to designate work spaces shared by two (2) or more persons, as well as cubicles, as Smoking Permitted areas, an effort shall be made to accommodate individual preferences to the degree prudently possible. When requested, supervisors shall make a reasonable attempt to separate persons who smoke from those who do not. When such an accommodation is not possible, the preferences of the nonsmoker shall prevail.

Department heads may establish stricter guidelines for work areas with the approval of the appropriate Dean, Vice President, or Resource Center Director, provided there is at least one (1) Smoking Permitted area in every building, unless a "smoke free" building is designated in accordance with Section 704.3.

Common Areas: Sections of lounges, lobbies and eating locations may be designated as Smoking Permitted areas. Where duplicate facilities exist, one (1) of those spaces may be a permitted area in its entirety.

Restrooms: One (1) or more restrooms may be designated Smoking Permitted provided there is an adequate number of smoke-free restrooms in the building. There must be at least one (1) Smoking Permitted area per building that is not a restroom.

Other Areas: Except for laboratories and other areas where smoking is prohibited by regulation/code, any other space which is controlled by a school or administrative unit may be designated Smoking Permitted provided that the area is enclosed by floor to ceiling walls/partitions.

704.3 Designating a "Smoke free" Building

A building that is completely under the authority of a Dean, Vice President or Resource Center Director may be designated "smoke free" upon the written approval of the respective Dean, Vice President or Resource Center Director. A building that is not completely under the authority of a Dean, Vice President or Resource Center Director requires the written approval of either the Provost or the Senior Vice President based on reporting lines of authority. A building occupied by departments that report to the Provost as well as departments that report to the Senior Vice President require written approvals from both the Provost and Senior Vice President prior to that building being designated "smoke free".

704.4 Enforcement

This policy relies on the thoughtfulness and consideration of smokers and nonsmokers as well as their cooperation in adhering to the specific arrangements in their work areas and in other University buildings. It is the responsibility of the University of Pennsylvania community to observe this policy and to direct those who are smoking to Smoking Permitted areas.

Concerns regarding the implementation of this policy should be referred to the immediate supervisor for resolution. If the matter cannot be resolved, it should be referred to OHR/Staff Relations or the appropriate Dean, Vice President or Resource Center Director.

* (For the purposes of this policy, the term disabilities refers to physical impairments or conditions that limit individual mobility and any personal medical conditions that would be aggravated by the smoking of others.)

DEATHS

Dr. Alan Epstein

Dr. Alan Neil Epstein, professor of behavioral neuroscience, died in an automobile accident on January 9 in Mexico while attending a scientific meeting in developmental psychobiology. He was 59.

A member of the biology department of SAS and the David Mahoney Institute of Neurological Sciences at Medicine, he was a world authority on the neuroendocrine basis of salt appetite, and the first to demonstrate that the hormone angiotensin acted in the brain to raise the appetite for salt. He went on to add that the adrenal hormone aldosterone also acted synergistically with angiotensin in the brain.

Dr. Epstein took both his B.A. and M.D. at the Johns Hopkins University, where he studied under Penn's former provost Dr. Eliot Stellar. "He was an outstanding teacher and literally brought the excitement of the investigation of brain mechanisms underlying behavior to his students," Dr. Stellar said. "He is particularly noted for the long list of outstanding scientists who got their training over the years in his laboratory."

"Alan epitomized the international nature of science. He has had active collaborations in France, England, Italy, Israel, Brazil, Mexico and China, and has traveled all over the world as a distinguished invited lecturer on how the brain yields salt appetite, thirst and affective behavior in general."

"His family and his colleagues around the world mourn his loss."

Dr. Epstein is survived by his wife, Fifi; daughters Lisa Corson and Ruth, son Mark, and grandchildren Philip and Rachel Corson. A memorial service is to be announced.

Mary Eakin Crooks, secretary to seven Provosts during her more than fifty years at Penn, died December 16 at the age of 85. Joining the University as a clerk for the industrial engineering department in 1924, Miss Crooks was named secretary to the Vice Provost in 1938 and became secretary to the Provost in 1939. She retired in 1972 but returned part time to the Provost's Office from 1976 to 1978. An honorary Master of Arts degree awarded to her in 1973 cited her as "Advisor, confidant and assistant to seven Provosts."

"She was a first, albeit undesignated, Ombudsman to a 42-year long line of Trustees, alumni, students, professors, administrators, and other members of Pennsylvania, who gained beyond measure from her discreet advice and informed understanding," the citation read.

She is survived by two nephews, Andrew K. and Warren Purdy.

James Dunsmore, Jr., a senior at the Wharton School, died on December 26 of a heart attack while jogging near his home in St. Louis. Mr. Dunsmore, 21, was majoring in multinational management with an emphasis on Russian studies. A scholar/athlete fluent in Russian, Mr. Dunsmore was a third-generation member of the University, preceded by his grandfather, his parents, James and Susan Dunsmore, who survive him, and four uncles. He was a brother of Sigma Chi fraternity and was active in the Campus Watch program. A campus memorial service is planned for January 18 (see box) and his parents have asked donations to the University in his memory.

Dr. Anthony Garvan

Dr. Anthony N.B. Garvan, the emeritus professor of American Civilization who was first to chair the department, died on January 10 74, after 41 years' affiliation with Penn.

Dr. Garvan, who established within his discipline the specialty of material culture, was a multifaceted scholar who looked at all the artifacts of the society—tools, furniture and architecture among them—and at times wrote and taught on historic preservation, city planning, history of art and many other subjects. He won the Society of Architectural Historians' Medal in 1951 for his book on Architecture and Town Planning in Colonial Connecticut, and later won both Guggenheim and Rockefeller Foundation Fellowships.

A prolific and outstanding writer, he was "even greater as a teacher," according to the present chair, Dr. Murray Murphey, recalling a witty and energetic lecturer, bursting with ideas as he engaged classes of 200 or more.

Dr. Vijay K. Gohel, 59, associate professor of radiology at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, died December 5 at HUP after suffering a massive heart attack while at work at the Veterans Administration Hospital. Born in Khara Ghoda, India, and trained in Bombay, Dr. Gohel came to the U.S. in 1958 as a resident at what is now Thomas Jefferson University Hospital. He joined the HUP some 15 years ago and during ten of those years he was also head of radiology at the VA.

He is survived by his wife, Pravina Vijay Gohel; two sons, Drs. Gautam and Shyam V. Gohel, both of whom have followed in his footsteps and are completing their training in radiology, a daughter, Rupa R. Rana; a brother, and a sister.

He served as lecturer at the Winterthur Museum and head curator of civil history at the Smithsonian during his Penn career, and was president of the board of the Library Company at the time of his death.

An alumnus of Yale who took all three of his degrees there—the B.A. in 1939, M.A. in 1942 and Ph.D. in 1948—Dr. Garvan was a member of the U.S. Office of Strategic Services in 1943-44 and served with the U.S. Navy in the Pacific in 1944-46. After the war, Dr. Garvan taught American History at Bard College before joining Penn as assistant professor in 1951. He edited the American Quarterly from 1951 to 1957, became associate professor in 1956 and was made full professor and chair in 1960.

Dr. Garvan is survived by his wife, Beatrice; daughters, Kathleen Franks, Brady Brown, Nichola Garvan, Christina Bonn and Blake Monath; 11 grandchildren and a sister.

Dr. Irving Kravis

Dr. Irving B. Kravis, emeritus professor of economics and former Faculty Senate chair, died on January 3 at 75. Details of his career, and of a memorial service now being arranged, will appear next week. Dr. Kravis is survived by his wife, Lillian, sons Drs. Robert and Nathan Kravis, daughters Dr. Ellen Hamburger and Marcia Kravis; six grandchildren and a sister.

Frances Guba, senior technical writer for the Data Communication and Computing Service and University Management Information System, died on December 9 at the age of 42. A memorial service is planned for January 24 (see box). Ms. Guba, who took her degree in communications at Temple, had been in data management positions with the University since 1986, and was promoted to senior technical writer last fall.

She is survived by her mother, Ann; her sisters Maryann Garber and Geri Flores; an aunt, Josephine Guba, and a friend, Greg Smith.

Dr. Alois Nowotny, professor of immunology and pathology at the School of Dental Medicine since 1976, died on December 20 after complications following heart surgery.

Dr. Nowotny, known as Andre to friends and colleagues, was an organic chemist noted for his research in endotoxin. He published and traveled extensively to lecture in Europe, the Middle East, China and Japan.

Dr. Nowotny was born and educated in Hungary, emigrating to the U.S. after the 1956 uprising. While on the faculty at Temple he took a master's degree in archaeology and pursued the discipline during his travels as a scientist.

Dr. Nowotny is survived by his wife, Anna, their daughters Susanne and Andrea, sons-in-law Eric and Brian, and grandchildren Timothy and Caroline. A memorial service is scheduled January 26 (see box) and a memorial fund is being established in his honor through the International Endotoxin Society.

Report of the Judicial Inquiry

To the University Community:

As required by the Charter of the University Student Judicial System, I am presenting a report on statistics derived from 157 cases opened by the Office of the Judicial Inquiry Officer from September 1, 1990, through August 31, 1991. Please refer to Almanac October 30, 1990, for last year's data.

The Statistical Report at left includes a listing of the general categories of behaviors that resulted in charges that students violated the University's codes, policies, or guidelines. The Report also states the numbers of complaints that were received regarding each category of behavior. A single case may have involved more than one category of behavior as well as more than one accused student. Where numbers (1-9) are given beside a category of behavior at left, they refer to the notes below, which give some examples of specific actions that fell in that category of behavior.

Readers will note that a new category of behavior, Acquaintance Rape, has been listed because complaints were received of behavior that was consistent with behavior prohibited by the University's Acquaintance Rape and Sexual Violence Policy.

The section at right details the range of sanctions that were imposed in each category of behavior. Sanctions were combined as appropriate, depending upon the severity of the behaviors which resulted in a finding that one of the University's codes, guidelines or policies had been violated. For example, in one case a student was found to have violated the Antihazing Policy and to have assaulted another student. In that case, the sanctions were combined under the Assault category of the Code of Conduct.

I will be pleased to answer questions from the University community concerning this report. I can be reached at Ext. 8-5651.

An Upward Spiral in Recycling

The Penn Recycling Program is now delivering to local processors more paper than ever before (average: 200 tons/month), and is recycling about 26% of the waste stream, according to Al Pallanti, superintendent of recycling. He projects recycling 2000 tons of paper in FY1991-92, equivalent to 34,000 trees.

Penn probably leads the Ivy League in proportion of waste stream recycled—though the eight schools handle different mixes of materials according to their settings, local regulations, and what processors will accept.

Penn's soaring growth may stem from the fact that less pre-sorting is required than in the sister schools. According to Almanac's informal survey, Penn is alone in collecting in the same bins all colored paper, file folders, green-bar computer paper, newspapers, window envelopes, cardboard, glossy coated paper, magazines, phone books, and white paper. Penn people are asked only to keep out food waste, and to separate cans and bottles.

Using the new three-part Penn Recycling Drop-Off containers, Penn has also recycled 10 tons of glass, plastics and cans since mid-October. These are now at Towne, Locust Walk near Steinberg-Dietrich, Grad Towers and Hill House, and two more are planned this year, at 37th & Spruce near the Quad, and between 39th and 40th near the High Rises.

Material headed for compost is not weighed at Penn, but since 1990 all leaves and yard wastes from the 265-acre West Philadelphia campus as well as Morris Arboretum were composted; none has gone to landfills.

Apples & Oranges?

The trend is up throughout the Ivy League, though in rating the schools one risks comparing apple peels and orange rinds.

Princeton began recycling in July 1989 and collected 852 tons its first year (mostly of corrugated boxes, mixed paper and newspaper, along with bottles, cans, and plastics). This represents about 25% of its waste stream.

Dartmouth is recycling over 22% of its waste stream—white paper, aluminum cans, newsprint and cardboard as well as scrap metal, wood, disposable styrene cups and yard waste. Its newspapers are shredded by a local dairy farm for use as cow bedding, and after use are mixed with manure and composted.

Brown, too, provides farmers with tons of waste—about 250 tons of food waste a year is given to pig farmers, and 50 tons of leaves to a farm for composting. Brown's paper recycling comes to about 15-17% of their waste stream, including newspaper, white, mixed paper and cans, bottles and wood, scrap metal, but the figure is closer to 20% counting food waste, compost and about 6 tons of food grease.

Urban Columbia, like Penn, focuses on paper (but currently recycles only white, not mixed) and on cardboard. Columbia estimates its volume at 15% of the waste stream.

The Cornell Chronicle reports that Cornell Recycling has found a market for coated paper, which should increase paper recycling from 50 tons/month (14% of the waste stream). The program begun in 1989 will then aim at more cardboard (now 40 tons/month) and try to find efficient ways to recycle beverage containers—which have to be washed there.

Harvard began recycling with student volunteers about four years ago (as did Penn in the 'seventies) but the administration has begun to assume some responsibility and costs of sorting and collecting. Harvard recycles newspapers, cardboard, phone books, plastics, glass and aluminum from student locations and white paper from some 70 administrative offices.

Yale's recycling effort began with students about 15 years ago. The administration began campus-wide collection in March 1990 with a (computer paper) ribbon-cutting, and full-scale implementation came in January 1991 when Connecticut law mandated nine specific recycling categories including lead acid batteries and oil from crank cases. From August through October last year Yale averaged about 11% of the waste stream, and is aiming for 25%.

Next week: Buying recycled products.
