Marjorie G. Ernest Term Chair in English: Dr. Rabaté

Dr. Rabaté

Dr. Jean-Michel Rabaté, who came to Penn in July from the University of Dijon, has been named to the English Department's Marjorie G. Ernest Term Professorship, a chair given in 1990 by the 1956 College alumna for whom it is named.

Dr. Rabaté received his B.A. from the Sorbonne Paris-III, then took his 1970 M.A. in English literature and his 1980 Ph.D. summa cum laude from Paris-VIII. He joined the University of Dijon as a lecturer in 1973 and rose to professor of English and American literature there.

SAS Dean Rosemary Stevens said Dr. Rabaté's research on modern British literature, with a particular emphasis on the works of James Joyce, "brings further distinction to one of our most outstanding departments. In the last four years alone, he has published four books, five book-length translations, a collection of essays, and 39 articles. He is recognized among the world's top modernists specializing in the works of the major writers of the early twentieth century."

Dr. Rabaté is a founding member of the Groupe de recherches sur James Joyce, co-editor of James Joyce—Scribble, and a member of Jacques Aubert's team preparing a new critical edition and translation of Joyce's Ulysses for the "Pléiade" series published by Gallimard. He is also co-director of Ulysses-fin-de-siècle, a publishing company, in Dijon.

Council October 14: Discussions

For its first meeting of the academic year, from 4 to 6 p.m. Wednesday, October 14, the University Council has an all-discussion agenda of three items:

Admissions and Financial Aid: Discussion resumes on a proposed change in bylaws that would rename the former Committee on Undergraduate Admissions and Financial Aid and revise its charge in the light of the creation last year of the Provost's Council on Admissions. For the text of the proposed by-laws change, see page 7 of this issue.

Women Making a Difference: A report by Dr. Louise Shoemaker, former Senate chair and former dean of the School of Social Work, on the yearlong celebration (see below and page 2 of this issue).

Campus Transportation: A report by Steven Murray, vice president for business services, on the revisions in Penn Transit Services adopted after last spring's survey of campus bus and escort users. For an overview of changes, see the Penn Transit insert in Almanac September 8.

Leadership Chair: Dr. Fagin

Dr. Claire M. Fagin, former dean of the School of Nursing, has been named to a new endowed chair at the School. As the first Leadership Professor, Dr. Fagin takes a chair set up to examine urgent health care issues, develop action plans to lower health care costs, and foster leadership among nurses in the initiation of policy change. Dean Norma M. Lang announced the appointment October 8 in conjunction with the School's first annual Leadership Lecture, given by Roe v. Wade Attorney Sara Weddington. "In nursing circles, the name Claire Fagin is synonymous with the word leadership," the dean said. Dr. Fagin is president of the National League for Nursing and co-editor of a new book, Charting Nursing's Future: Agenda for the 1990's.

The new chair was endowed by funds from the School's Leadership Venture Fund and from the proceeds of a gala held in Dr. Fagin's honor.

President's Medal: Dr. Weisz

Dr. Paul Weisz, Distinguished Professor of Chemical Engineering Emeritus, received the National Medal of Technology from President George Bush at the White House in June.

Dr. Weisz, 73, joined Penn in 1984 after a long career at Mobil Oil. He is known not only for discoveries in zeolite catalysis, but for work as far afield as developing (with Judah Folkman of Harvard) a synthetic chemical shown to inhibit tumors by blocking the abnormal growth of blood vessels. His recent work is on chemical processes involving Alzheimer's and AIDS. Dean Gregory Farrington of SEAS calls Dr. Weisz, "The epitome of what a research scientist should be."

Invitation to a Rally: October 22

All members of the University are invited to a rally in Blanche Levy Park at noon Thursday, October 22, to launch the year-long celebration of Women Making a Difference at Penn. Almost 20 years ago at College Hall, a four day sit-in by women students, faculty and staff ended with the founding of three Penn programs that will observe their anniversaries in 1992-93: the Women's Studies Program, the Penn Women's Center, and the Victim Support and Special Services unit of the University Police Department. See details, page 2.

Increased Scrutiny of Research: Open Meeting October 19

New Issues in the Conduct of Research: Increased Scrutiny by Funding and Regulatory Agencies is the topic of an open meeting to be held October 19 from 10 a.m. to noon in Dunlop Auditorium, Stemmler Hall.

Dr. Barry Cooperman, Vice Provost for Research, will introduce a seven-part presentation on recent and impending changes as they affect the work of faculty and of research-related staff. The speakers and their topics:

Anthony Merritt, executive director of the Office of Sponsored Programs: Indirect Costs and Current Regulatory Issues;

Dr. Alan Schreiber, assistant dean for research at the School of Medicine: NIH Regulations; Stephen Sammut, director of the Technology Transfer Center: The University's Draft Revised Patent Policy;

Matthew Finucane, director of the Office of Environmental Health and Safety: OSHA Compliance and New Processes, Programs, and Procedures;

Dr. Mark Selikson, director of the Office of Radiation Safety: Changes in Federal and State Regulations and Radioactive Waste Storage and Disposal;

Dr. Harry Rozmiarek, director of University Laboratory Animal Resources: USDA Implementation of the Animal Welfare Act and Plans for AAALAC Accreditation at Penn;

Ruth Clark, associate director of regulatory affairs in the Office of Sponsored Programs: Regulatory Information for the Conduct of Research.

For more information see the eight-page pullout in this week's issue.

SENATE

From the Senate Office

The following is published in accordance with the Senate Rules.

Last week two of the Faculty Senate's elected committees chose their chairs in accordance with the Senate Rules:

Professor of Law Frank I. Goodman for the Senate Committee on Academic Freedom and Responsibility, and Professor of Law Howard Lesnick for the Senate Committee on Conduct.

Below is an overview of the 1992-93 celebration of Women Making a Difference at Penn. The School of Nursing sponsored the first all-University lecture in the year's calendar, an appearance by Roe v. Wade Attorney Sara Weddington. Next is a rally October 22 (page 1), and a November 13 symposium on Women in Politics, to be announced.

Women Making a Difference at Penn

The University of Pennsylvania is justly proud of its record of attracting women of the highest quality as administrators, faculty, students and staff. The Trustees Council of Penn Women is praised by the New York Times as innovative and effective. Our Women's Studies Program, which now offers a graduate certificate in Women's Studies, is one of the finest in the country. The Penn Women's Center and Victim Support and Special Services have gained national recognition for designing programs responsive to sexual violence on university campuses.

The University could not always boast of such an exemplary record. Many of us remember a time when the University imposed quotas on the admission of women to undergraduate and professional schools, when it could claim few women faculty or administrators. Twenty years ago this spring in response to the protests of an angry and determined group of women students, the University reversed its policies towards women, and began to actively encourage their advancement. Those students, supported by women faculty, administrators and staff, presented a telling list of complaints. Physical assaults and rapes of women students on campus had become frequent; there was no women's studies program; there were few tenured women faculty and few support services for women. Underscoring the seriousness of the situation, the students and their supporters organized a sit-in at College Hall. The University administration responded with equal seriousness. They improved security, women achieved a greater voice in matters pertaining to their well-being—and most notably, the Women's Studies Program, the Penn Women's Center and Victim Support and Special Services were established.

To celebrate the action of those determined women twenty years ago, to celebrate the advances women have made at the University, to plan constructively for the great advances in their future, a broad coalition of University groups have joined together and proclaimed 1992-93 a year-long celebration of Women Making a Difference at Penn. The University's four academic deans, its women Vice Presidents and Vice Provosts have declared their support by agreeing to be Honorary Chairs. Other members of the coalition include: the Women's Studies Program, the Penn Women's Center, the Association of Women Faculty and Administrators, the Pan-Asian Circle, Sister-Sister, Wharton Women, Women's Equal Opportunity at Penn, and Women United for Change.

As part of Women Making a Difference at Penn, the academic deans, Vice Presidents and Vice Provosts, in cooperation with the Coalition, will sponsor lectures and other educational and cultural events throughout the year. In addition, they and the coalition will request all the remaining deans of the University to join in this effort, each school to feature women in the public events it sponsors during the year and each school to sponsor one or more events specifically centering upon women's issues. The year's activities will culminate in a banquet in April 1993.

Fiesta for Scholarships

To support tuition grants for women over 30 returning to the College of General Studies, The Bread Upon the Waters Scholarship Fund will hold A Celebration of Scholarship and Music on Thursday, October 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the Rittenhouse Hotel. Music is by Latin Fiesta (left), and admission is $35; to be a Patron, $100. For additional information call Rhea Mandell at 898-6940.

Undated PENNCards Expire

The PENNCard Center announces that PENNCards issued to staff and faculty before 1989 with no expiration date on the second line will expire January 1, 1993, curtailing these cards' use for some functions on campus. (More recently issued PENNCards have an expiration date on the second line showing when the card will expire, in the form "EX: 09/09/99".)

Affected cardholders may bring their PENNCards to the Center, located at 3401 Walnut Street, Suite 323A, and receive a replacement PENNCard without charge.

The Center is open from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. Monday through Friday, through December 24. For more information call Ext. 8-2646.

Graduate Certificate: Women's Studies

The Women's Studies Program of the University of Pennsylvania is pleased to announce the inauguration of a Graduate Certificate in Women's Studies. The certificate will be open to students enrolled in regular SAS graduate programs and will be granted to qualified students upon completion of their degree and the following requirements:

I. Two Graduate seminars in feminist theory—one introductory, one advanced. These seminars will be sponsored by the Women's Studies Program and address the relation of gender, race and sexuality. They will explore theories drawn from the humanities and the social sciences.

II. Three courses on women, gender or sexuality cross-listed by Women's Studies and other SAS programs and departments.

III. A thesis expanded from a term paper begun in one of the five courses required by the program.

A formal graduate program, the series of courses required by the Certificate is designed to attract scholars interested in:

- the study of women and gender,
- the interaction of race and gender,
- the social and ideological construction of sexuality
- feminist theory.

The goal of the program is twofold:

1. to support and further cutting-edge research
2. to respond to the growing need for faculty in the above fields and thus to give our students a leading edge in an ever more competitive job market.

A member of the Women's Studies Program's Graduate Committee will supervise each student. The Certificate will also be recorded on the student's course transcript.

The Women's Studies Program offers a dissertation year fellowship and one year-long graduate TAsip. Since we are actively engaged in a capital campaign to raise an endowment for graduate fellowships, we anticipate being able to expand the number of fellowships and TAsips granted in the near future.

Speaking Out

More on IAST and DOD

In his reply to my letter on the military sponsorship of the IAST, Barry Cooperman and his fellow chemists accuse me of distorting facts. I note, however, that they do not dispute a single one of the specific connections that I pointed to between IAST research programs and military technologies. Gregory Voth even brags about his own personal favorite, powerful hydrogen rocket fuels. Voth expects future wars to break out and is proud to assist in preparing to win them. So much for his fellow chemists' bland assurances that the work of the IAST will be civilian, and that whistle blowers are just alarmists and paranoids.

The chemists also continue to evade the troubling implications of the Pentagon's "Critical Technologies Plan," of which the IAST is a part. This program is not just another Pentagon grants program. It was designed by Congress and the military branches to develop a broad scientific base in American universities for development of new weapons systems.

The "Critical Technologies" scheme was the brainchild of panicky Congressmen and generals, who in the late 1980s feared that American defense industries might come to depend on foreign powers (e.g., Japan) for the know-how required to build future generations of smart, stealthy, Star Wars weapons. Aware that military budgets would decline in the 1990s, Congressional and military planners conceived the idea that a scientific base for future weapons development could be maintained on university campuses, quietly and at a relatively modest cost, by investing in facilities for research in areas of science that are relevant to future weapons R&D. The IAST is one such facility.

The troubling thing about the "Critical Technologies Plan" is its systematic scope and the fact that its military purposes are long-term and veiled rather than open and specific. Capital investments made to "Critical Technologies" programs are designed to engage universities in maintaining a scientific base for future weapons developments, at a time when post-Cold War cuts in military budgets make it hard for military institutions to do it themselves. It is this systematic, quiet co-option of academic institutions that makes the "Critical Technologies" program and its hatchling, the IAST, more dangerous than routine Pentagon grants and contracts.

The chemists protest that no one in the Pentagon is telling them what to do, so there is no danger that the University will be co-opted. They are naive. The Pentagon does not directly intrude in their work because it has invented a better way of getting what it wants in the long run. Having identified groups of scientists who like (or don't mind) doing basic science that is relevant to future weapons, the Pentagon need only give them new labs and let them do what comes naturally. That is the beauty of the "Critical Technologies" scheme for Pentagon planners.

No doubt it would be impracticable to ban Pentagon grants and contracts from university campuses. History suggests that universities can tolerate a certain level of military grants and contracts without subverting basic institutional ideals. But there are limits, and members of the University community need to be fully informed of the hidden implications of projects like the Air Force-sponsored IAST, so that they can judge for themselves what those limits are. Promoters of the IAST have not been forthcoming, and the chemists' violent reaction to my attempt to inform betrays a certain nervousness about public exposure.

The chemists at Penn do need more laboratory space, and the IAST was concocted to get military money for a new chemistry lab after efforts failed to raise funds from private sources. It was a desperate and risky gambit, and it is the University community as a whole that may one day have to pay the price of the Faustian bargain that has been made with the Congress and Pentagon.

— Robert Kohler, Professor of History and Sociology of Science

Further Response: Dr. Voth

I could have predicted how Robert Kohler would respond to my letter in the last issue of Almanac. He is certainly a master at distorting other people's words, as well as the facts. One has to wonder, however, whether he really believes these distortions. Is it possible that Professor Kohler is instead just attempting to sway public opinion to accomplish the goal of preserving Smith Hall at all costs?

I do want to clarify some points Kohler raises concerning my last letter. First of all, my research on hydrogen rocket fuels is unrelated to the funding for the IAST and will be carried out whether the IAST is constructed or not. I was commenting on the appropriateness of DOD funding and the benefits of that research for civilian technologies. It is possible that my DOD-funded basic research will have both civilian and military spin-offs. I am not trying to hide any of this from anybody. By the way, I should have noted in my last letter that only part of my overall research is supported by DOD. The bulk of my research is supported by civilian agencies and private foundations, but presumably DOD has access to it through the scientific literature. Kohler should perhaps begin a crusade against Physical Review or The Journal of Chemical Physics for publishing research that might benefit the military.

As a second comment on Kohler's letter, it is true that I would not be surprised if a war breaks out in the future. However, I explicitly stated in my letter that I am opposed to war and would like to avoid it if at all possible. Kohler has no right to question my devotion to that goal. I simply stated that I will not be ashamed if my research contributes in some indirect way to superior military technology for our soldiers. That statement has a rather different tone to it than Kohler's assertion that I am "proud to assist in preparing to win" wars.

— Gregory A. Voth
Assistant Professor of Chemistry

Response of Dr. Vohs

I was somewhat surprised when I read Professor Kohler's recent letters on the debate surrounding the construction of the IAST. In these letters he appears to be labeling a significant portion of the chemical and biochemical research presently being undertaken at Penn as being of primary interest to the military. The untenable nature of his arguments is self-evident and not worthy of my comment. I do believe that it should be pointed out, however, that many if not all of the research areas which are slated to be housed within the IAST facility are specifically mentioned in the National Research Council's recent report entitled Critical Technologies: The Role of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering as being vital to maintaining and strengthening American technology. This report also makes the point that improving the infrastructure of chemical and chemical engineering research is key to sustaining and advancing our national critical technologies. Clearly one of the primary functions of the IAST will be to address this need.

In light of Professor Kohler's previous statements concerning the IAST facility, I found his present arguments against this facility to be all that more surprising. For example, in his address to the Philadelphia Historic Commission (published in the Jan. 22, 1991 edition of Almanac) he states: "Friends of Smith Walk are not opposed to the proposed Institute for Advanced Science and Technology. Quite the contrary, we feel that strong science departments benefit the whole university. We are opposed only to the Administration's present plan [for the location of the building]." At that point in time he appeared to have only high praise for the scholarly endeavors to be carried out in the IAST. It should be pointed out that these comments were made with full knowledge that the DOD would be providing a portion of the funding for the construction of the IAST, since he mentioned this earlier in the same address. Professor Kohler expressed similar sentiments in a letter that appeared in the Oct. 22, 1991 edition of Almanac in which he states: "The idea of an institute for technology and science is a good idea, however it was conceived. A new kind of practice, uniting science and engineering, would be a good idea for both parties." These previous comments lead me to question both the motivation for and indeed the sincerity of Professor Kohler's latest attacks on the IAST.

— John M. Vohs, Assistant Professor of Chemical Engineering

From the extensive list of Trustees actions on appointments, reappointments, secondary appointments, leaves and terminations, Almanac gleans those actions reflecting movement into or within the Standing Faculty. This includes new appointments and promotions, and chair designations, with or without promotions, in all schools. In the health schools, where reappointment sometimes includes movement from the standing faculty (in tenure probation) to the clinician-educator track (standing faculty, but in non-tenure probation), those actions are published. Note that clinician-educator titles are recognizable by the form of title, "Professor of _____ at (affiliated institution)." The following list shows actions from Trustees' minutes of January 24, March 20, April 24 and June 19, 1992, representing actions approved at Provost's Staff Conferences leading up to those meetings. Actions marked (*) involve additions to the tenured ranks through appointment, promotion, or conversion.

Appointments and Promotions in the Standing Faculty, 1991-1992

School of Arts and Sciences

Appointments

- * Dr. Wendy Ashmore as Associate Professor of Anthropology.
- Dr. Eugene Buckley as Assistant Professor of Linguistics.
- * Dr. Ching-Li Chai as Associate Professor of Mathematics.
- Dr. Robin L. Clark as Assistant Professor of Linguistics.
- * Dr. Martha J. Farah as Associate Professor of Psychology.
- Dr. Thomas J. Harrison as Associate Professor of Economics.
- * Dr. G. John Ikenberry as Associate Professor of Political Science.
- * Dr. Patrick J. Kehoe as Associate Professor of Economics.
- Dr. Wai-ye Lias Assistant Professor of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies.
- Dr. Achille Mbembe as Associate Professor of History.
- Dr. Rafael Perez-Torres as Assistant Professor of English.
- Dr. Jose-Victor Rios-Rull as Assistant Professor of Economics.
- * Dr. Everett K. Rowson, Associate Professor of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies (with leave).
- Dr. Jaewoo Ryoo as Assistant Professor of Economics.
- Dr. Norbert F. Scherer as Assistant Professor of Economics.
- Dr. Thomas J. Sugrue as Assistant Professor of History.

Chair Designations

- Dr. Elisa New, Assistant Professor of English, as M. Mark and Esther K. Watkins Assistant Professor in the Humanities.
- Dr. Rosemary A. Stevens, Professor of History and Sociology of Science, as Thomas S. Gates Professor.

Lindback Awards for Distinguished Teaching, 1992-1993

Nominations are once again being solicited for the Lindback Awards presented annually to eight members of the University of Pennsylvania faculty in recognition of their distinguished contributions to teaching. They are open to teachers of undergraduates and graduate students in both the professional schools and the arts and sciences.

Non-Health Areas

For Lindback Awards in the non-health areas a separate Committee on Distinguished Teaching, appointed by the Vice Provost for University Life on behalf of the Provost, is charged with presenting the Provost's Staff Conference with eight candidates from which the four non-health area winners are chosen.

The Committee is drawn from the non-health schools and is composed of five Lindback Award recipients, three graduate and professional students, and two undergraduates. The Chairperson is one of the faculty members and is appointed by the Vice Provost.

Nominations should be submitted to the Committee on Distinguished Teaching, 200 Houston Hall/6306, to the attention of Terry Conn. They should be in the form of a letter, citing those qualities that make the nominee an outstanding teacher. It is particularly important to include the nominee's full name, department and rank; how you know the nominee; and your name, address and phone number. Additional supporting evidence, in the form of statistical surveys, curricula vitae, lists of courses taught, etc., will also be helpful to the Committee in its selection process.

Nominations will close Thursday, November 30, 1992.

Health Areas

For Lindback Awards in health areas, an internal nominating process is carried out in each school, using procedures developed in that school. The respective school committees shall submit their nominations to the Vice Provost for University Life in February. These will be reviewed by a Committee on Distinguished Teaching in the Health Areas, appointed by the Provost on the recommendations of the Deans, who will then develop a rank-ordered list of the candidates for submission to the Provost's Staff

Conference. The dossiers of those nominated must include a current curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations with instructions for interpreting them; letters of comments and/or support from students, faculty colleagues, deans, directors or department chairs.

Provost Awards, 1991-1992

The Provost Awards are presented annually to recognize distinguished teaching by full-time associated faculty or full-time academic support staff. One award will be given in the health schools and one in the non-health schools.

The Lindback Committee on Distinguished Teaching from the health and non-health areas also will evaluate nominations for these two awards. The Committee will present the Provost's Staff Conference with two final candidates in ranked order. From these, two winners will be chosen, one from each area.

The criteria for selection of Provost Award recipients are the same as those used in selection of Lindback Awardees.

With these criteria in mind, the Committee on Distinguished Teaching now welcomes nominations for these awards from schools or departments, individual students, student groups, faculty members or alumni. Nominations should be submitted to the Committee on Distinguished Teaching, 200 Houston Hall/6306, to the attention of Terry Conn. The nomination should be in the form of a letter, citing those qualities that make the nominee an outstanding teacher. It is particularly important to include the nominee's full name, department, and rank; how you know the nominee, and your name, address and telephone number. Additional supporting evidence, in the form of statistical surveys, curriculum vitae, lists of courses taught, etc., will also be helpful to the committee in its selection process.

Nominations will close Thursday, November 30, 1992.

Criteria and Guidelines for Lindback Awards

1. The Lindback Awards are given in recognition of distinguished teaching. "Distinguished" teaching is teaching that is intellectually demanding, unusually coherent, and permanent in its effect. The distinguished teacher has the capability of changing the way in which students view the subject they are studying. The distinguished teacher provides the basis for students to look with critical and informed perception at the fundamentals of a discipline, and he/she relates this discipline to other disciplines and to the world view of the student. The distinguished teacher is accessible to students and open to new ideas, but also expresses his/her own views with articulate conviction and is willing to lead students, with a combination of clarity and challenge, to an informed understanding of an academic field. The distinguished teacher is fair, free from prejudice, and single-minded in the pursuit of truth.

2. Distinguished teaching means different things in different fields. While the distinguished teacher should be versatile, as much at home in large groups as in small, and in beginning classes as in advanced, he or she may have skills of special importance to his/her area of specialization. Skillful direction of dissertation students, effective supervision of student researchers, ability to organize a large course of many sections, skill in leading seminars, special talent with large classes, ability to handle discussions or to structure lectures—these are all relevant attributes, although it is unlikely that anyone will excel in all of them.

3. Distinguished teaching is recognized and recorded in many ways; evaluation must also take several forms. It is not enough to look solely at letters of recommendation from students. It is not enough to consider "objective" evaluations of particular classes in tabulated form; a faculty member's influence extends beyond the classroom and beyond individual classes. Nor is it enough to look only at a candidate's most recent semester or at opinions expressed immediately after a course is over; the influence of the best teachers lasts while that of others may be great at first but lessen over time. It is not enough merely to gauge student adulation, for its basis is superficial; but neither should such feelings be discounted as unworthy of investigation. Rather, all of these factors and more, should enter into the identification and assessment of distinguished teaching.

4. The Lindback Awards have a symbolic importance that transcends the recognition of individual merit. They should be used to advance effective teaching by serving as reminders to as wide a spectrum of the University community as possible of the expectations of the University for the quality of its mission.

5. Distinguished teaching occurs in all parts of the University and therefore faculty members from all schools are eligible for consideration. An excellent teacher who does not receive an award in a given year may be re-nominated in some future year and receive the award then.

6. The Lindback Awards may be awarded to faculty members who have many years of service remaining, or they may recognize many years of distinguished service already expended. No faculty member may be considered for the Lindback Award in a year in which the member is considered for tenure. All nominees should be members of the standing faculty. The teaching activities for which the awards are granted must be components of the degree programs of the University of Pennsylvania.

7. The awards should recognize excellence in either undergraduate or graduate/professional teaching or both.

8. The recipient of a Lindback Award should be a teacher/scholar. While a long bibliography is not necessarily the mark of a fine mind, nor the lack of one a sign of mediocrity, it is legitimate to look for an active relationship between a candidate's teaching and the current state of scholarship in his/her field.

COUNCIL

For discussion October 14, 1992

Text of Proposed Revision to Council Bylaws

(Deletions in brackets; insertions underlined)

VI. Committees, 1. Standing

(m) Committee on [Undergraduate] Admissions and Financial Aid. The Committee on [Undergraduate] Admissions and Financial Aid shall [have cognizance over] consider matters of undergraduate and graduate/professional recruitment, admissions, and financial aid [which] that concern the University as a whole [and] or those [which] that are not the specific responsibility of individual faculties.* The Committee [shall have the authority to] [may] shall carry out studies on existing recruitment and admissions procedures in their relationships with existing policies on admissions and financial aid[,] and [it] shall [be responsible for recommending changes in policy] make reports to the Council about these matters. [It shall make recommendations annually concerning the size of the incoming class after receiving the advice of the individual faculties. The Committee shall be available to consult with the dean of admissions and director of financial aid on interpretation of existing policy and application of policy to specific cases.] The Committee may invite deans, associate deans, and others responsible for undergraduate and graduate/professional recruitment, admissions, and financial aid to its meetings to provide information and shall be available to consult with these persons. The dissemination of information in regard to undergraduate and graduate/professional admissions is a major responsibility of this Committee. The Committee shall consist of [nine] eight faculty members, one administrator, [four] three undergraduates, and [one] three graduate/professional students. [The dean of each undergraduate school appoints one representative to the Committee. The vice provost for university life, dean of admissions, director of the Penn Plan, and director of student financial aid are non-voting ex officio members.]

* University Statutes Article 9. The Faculties and the School and Colleges: "... the responsibility for determining the quality of the student body shall rest with the Faculty of that school. Each Faculty shall articulate the criteria for selection of applicants for admission and shall establish a written admissions policy that describes these criteria. Each Faculty shall also monitor implementation of its admissions policy and amend it when necessary. "... each Faculty shall also set its regulations for instruction of students and requirements for recommendations for degrees in course and in faculty."

Free Hepatitis Screening

In conjunction with a nationwide campaign sponsored by the American Liver Foundation, the Gastroenterology Division of Penn's Medical Center will offer free blood tests to screen for Hepatitis B and C on October 14, from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and October 19 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Screenings will take place on the first floor of the Maloney Building, located at 36th and Spruce Streets. Large groups (ten or more) are required to pre-register by calling Penn's HealthLine at 662-7366.

Faculty Exchange Opportunities: October 15 Deadlines

Applications are invited from faculty interested in participating in the following exchange programs:

Katholieke Universiteit Leuven (Belgium)
deadlines October 15, 1992 for spring 1993;
February 15, 1993 for fall 1993

For the Walt Whitman Centennial: A Penn Symposium

The centennial of Walt Whitman's death is marked at Penn with a two-day symposium on the poet's life, work, times and influence on October 16-17 at the Annenberg School Theater and an exhibit of rare works and personal mementos at the Kamin Exhibition Gallery in Van Pelt Library October 16-December 15. Campus events are sponsored by the English Department and Van Pelt Library in collaboration with the Walt Whitman Association and are part of a wider series of free public events entitled Breaking Bounds: A Walt Whitman Centennial Symposium and Celebration. Related events include Allen Ginsberg's talk on "Whitman and Contemporary American Poetry" at the Pennsylvania Academy October 15 and, in Camden, walking tours of Whitman's home and ceremonies at his tomb the weekend of October 17-18. For more information, or to register for the symposium, call the English Department at Ext. 8-7341.
