Campus Safety and Security: A Shared Responsibility Annual Report 2008

Campus safety and security at the University of Pennsylvania is a shared responsibility. Clearly, the best protection against campus crime is an aware, informed, alert campus community—students, faculty and staff who use reason and caution—along with a strong law-enforcement presence.

The vast majority of our students, faculty, staff and visitors do not experience crime at the University of Pennsylvania. However, crimes sometimes occur despite our best efforts and yours. This information is provided because of our commitment to campus safety and security and in compliance with the federal law, The Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act (The Clery Act), and the Pennsylvania Uniform Crime Reporting Act (formerly known as the College and University Security Information Act). It is meant to be useful to you. If you have concerns, questions or comments about the requirements of federal or state law or Penn's compliance with these laws, please contact Maureen Rush, Vice President for Public Safety, Division of Public Safety, at (215) 898-7515.

The Division of Public Safety

The Division of Public Safety is committed to enhancing the quality of life of the campus community, integrating the best practices of public and private policing with state-of-the-art security technology. Its 176 full-time employees and over 500 contract employees work in the six departments that report to the Office of the Vice President: University Police, Special Services, Fire and Emergency Services, Security and Technical Services, Finance and Administration, and the Communications Center (PennComm).

The University Police Department maintains police patrols 24 hours a day, seven days a week on campus—by foot, car, motorcycle and bicycle—with a police force of 116 sworn officers, the largest private police force in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. University Police also work closely with the Philadelphia Police Department, as both agencies patrol and respond in neighborhood areas west to 43rd Street, south to Baltimore Avenue, east to 30th Street and north to Market Street. University Police Officers have full law enforcement powers, including the authority to make arrests for criminal violations. University Police Officers are authorized to carry firearms when on duty, and they do so. Otherwise, the possession of air rifles or pistols, firearms, ammunition, gunpowder or other dangerous articles or substances is strictly prohibited on Penn property or at University-sponsored events. Any exception to this rule must be approved by the Vice President for Public Safety.

University Police Officers have completed rigorous training prescribed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania under the Municipal Police Officer's Education and Training Commission. Once an officer has completed police academy training, he or she participates in a Field Training Program, developed and coordinated through the Division of Public Safety. Officers remain in probationary status following graduation from the police academy, and an annual in-service training is provided in accordance with established standards for continuing professional education for municipal police officers. The University of Pennsylvania Police Department received international accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA) on March 1, 2001; and was reaccredited for a third time on March 24, 2007. The Penn Police Department is the first university in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to receive this prestigious recognition and one of only 41 universities and colleges nationwide to achieve this honor.

The Chief of the University Police serves as the law enforcement liaison for the Penn Police Department and coordinates all relations with city, state and federal law enforcement officials. The Chief also serves as the community liaison for the Penn Police Department and coordinates all work with neighborhood town watch organizations, community and civic groups, and the Police Athletic League.

The University Police Department maintains a full-service detective unit headed by the department's Deputy Chief of Investigations. Criminal incidents are assigned to a detective within the University Police Detective unit, who is responsible for the investigation of the crime or coordination with the Philadelphia Police Department. If the incident involves a student who has violated policies, procedures, codes of conduct, or the law, the Penn Police will advise the victim or complainant of the option to report the incident to the Office of Student Conduct or the responsible University office. Consistent with legal requirements, information regarding the persons arrested by University Police is available to the public.

To contact University Police in an emergency, dial 511 from a campus telephone, use one of more than 480 blue light emergency telephones on campus and in the surrounding neighborhood or dial (215) 573-3333 from off-campus/cell phones.

The Communications Center (PennComm) of the Division of Public Safety monitors the Philadelphia Police Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) terminal for the geographical area surrounding the University of Pennsylvania campus. University Police Officers respond to assist the Philadelphia Police Department in certain situations, and they respond to those addresses or locations within the University Patrol zone. University Police Detectives also are in regular contact with the 18th District of the Philadelphia Police Department to obtain information on criminal incidents reported to the Philadelphia Police Department but not to University Police, for addresses or locations owned or controlled by the University or associated with a recognized student organization.

The Special Services Department, in conjunction with the University of Pennsylvania Detective Unit, provides over 200 safety workshops and forums each year to student groups, members of the faculty and the staff. Self-defense clinics and other workshops or special presentations can be designed to meet the particular needs of the group requesting services. Special Services personnel are available to consult with individuals or departments regarding crime prevention and safety issues. Additionally, safety presentations can be found on the Division of Public Safety website at www.publicsafety.upenn.edu. In addition, Special Services personnel are available to offer assistance and support to victims of crime.

The department is headed by a Director, who serves as the University coordinator for support services for "sensitive crimes" such as rape or attempted rape, acquaintance rape, sexual or domestic violence. The Director serves on various University committees that review and develop policies on these and related issues. The Director also interacts with academic departments, College Houses, Housing and Conference Services, and many other divisions across the University, given the individual's authorization, to coordinate victim support services. Every effort is made to protect the confidentiality of private information.

To contact the Special Services Department during normal business hours, call 8-4481 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-4481 from off-campus/cell phones. For emergency support 24 hours a day, seven days a week, call 8-6600 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-6600 from off-campus/cell phones. On evenings or weekends, PennComm will answer all calls to (215) 898-6600 and will notify Special Services personnel.

The Department of Fire and Emergency Services (FES) manages the University's fire and emergency services programs, working in collaboration with the City of Philadelphia Departments of Fire and Licenses and Inspections to monitor and enhance compliance with local, state and federal codes through periodic building inspections. Under the direction of a Chief, FES serves as the lead agency for the University's Crisis and Emergency planning functions by preparing people to respond appropriately in the event of an emergency and to oversee the readiness of all campus building life safety systems and equipment. In addition to its planning functions, FES liaisons with governmental agencies, organizations in University City, the schools and centers at Penn, and the associate departments in the Division of Public Safety to prevent, prepare for, and respond to and recover from crisis events on or near the campus.

The department provides numerous additional services, including monitoring emergency drills, safety training to new students and employees, new police officer orientation, acting as the liaison with the University's property insurance carrier, and developing building-specific crisis management action planning books.

Fire and Emergency Services specialists work with the University's real estate partner, University City Associates (UCA) and the Office of Off-Campus Living, to help promote safety in off-campus residences. The department conducts special activities throughout campus for Fire Prevention Week, and September is Campus Fire Safety and Emergency Preparedness Month. FES also designs various safety promotional items for the community for distribution throughout the year.

To contact the Department of Fire and Emergency Services during normal business hours, call 3-7857 from a campus telephone or (215) 573-7857 from off-campus/cell phones. To contact the department in an emergency, dial 511 from a campus telephone, or dial (215) 573-3333 from off-campus/cell phones. On evenings or weekends, call PennComm at (215) 898-7297.

Security technologies and professional security officer services, combined with effective community policing, are vital components of the Division of Public Safety's programs to provide a safer campus environment. The Security and Technical Services Department provides guidance and oversight for the design and installation of all electronic security for the university. The department also provides campus-wide electronic security systems administration and support. Currently, this includes emergency blue light telephones, building alarm systems, electronic access control systems and closed-circuit video (CCTV) monitoring for safety and security purposes.

The Director of Security and Technical Services has the primary responsibility for developing and implementing the University security management plan. The University of Pennsylvania retains Allied-Barton to provide skilled security services on-campus and in the surrounding community. Allied security officers work in concert with the University Police, Philadelphia Police and the University City District by providing highly visible foot, bicycle and motorized patrol services on-campus and in the University Patrol zone, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Security officers are also assigned to screen access to student residences and other buildings and to provide security services at special events.

In addition, the University City District (UCD), a special services district which encompasses the University and its surrounding neighborhoods, employs uniformed Ambassadors who serve as additional eyes and ears in the community. UCD Ambassadors are in radio communication with Penn Police and security and the Philadelphia Police Department. Further, the Philadelphia Police Department has dedicated additional personnel to patrol within the UCD boundaries.

Security and Technical Services (Allied Barton) and the University City Ambassadors also provide walking escorts, UC Walk, to University City students, staff and faculty, 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The walking escort boundaries are currently 30th Street to 52nd Street, Spring Garden Street to Baltimore Avenue. To request a walking escort, call 8-WALK from campus or (215) 898-WALK from off-campus/cell phones.

The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania and the Medical School use a uniformed security force that screens access and egress at public entrances to buildings and provides routine patrols of the facilities 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Reporting Crime

The Communications Center (PennComm) of the Division of Public Safety is maintained 24 hours a day, seven days a week. All criminal incidents should be reported to the Division of Public Safety for response and documentation. Incidents known in common parlance as Part I crimes that are identified to the Division of Public Safety are reported to the Philadelphia Police Department to ensure that all agencies charged with providing services are aware of these incidents. The relationship and exchange of information with city, state and federal authorities is extremely important, and it is an ongoing process. The Philadelphia Police Department alerts the Division of Public Safety to reported incidents in the surrounding neighborhoods that are jointly patrolled by both University Police and the Philadelphia Police Department. To report a criminal incident, dial 511 from a campus telephone, use one of more than 480 blue light emergency telephones on campus and in the community or dial (215) 573-3333 from off-campus/cell phones. You also can report a criminal incident in person at the Division of Public Safety, 4040 Chestnut St., which is staffed with professional personnel 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The University of Pennsylvania Police Department maintains a computerized database for all reported criminal incidents, including those that occur on campus, those that occur in the surrounding neighborhood and those that occur well beyond the campus community. This data serves as the basis for crime statistics reported to the FBI Uniform Crime Reporting System, for compliance with the Clery Act and the Pennsylvania Uniform Crime Reporting Act and for reporting crime statistics to the campus community. Our annual report also includes data from non-police sources, including certain school officials.

The Clery Act requires Penn to provide students and employees with information on its security policies and procedures and specific statistics for certain criminal incidents, arrests and disciplinary referrals and to make the information and statistics available to prospective students and employees upon request. The Pennsylvania Uniform Crime Reporting Act requires Penn to provide information on its security policies and procedures to students, employees and applicants, to provide crime statistics to students and employees, and to make these statistics available to applicants and prospective employees upon request. This information is available by calling the Division of Public Safety Special Services Department at (215) 898-4481 or online at www.publicsafety.upenn.edu/clery.asp.

All crimes against persons that occur on campus and in the surrounding neighborhood, including the areas jointly patrolled by the University Police and the Philadelphia Police Department, are published in Almanac, the weekly journal of record, opinion and news, published by the University of Pennsylvania and are available online at www.upenn.edu/almanac/crimes-index.html. The Division of Public Safety maintains a Crime Log, a chronological listing of all crimes reported to University Police, available on a public information kiosk, located in the lobby of DPS Headquarters, 4040 Chestnut Street. When the Division of Public Safety becomes aware of criminal incidents that, in the judgment of the Vice President for Public Safety, constitute an ongoing or continuing threat to the campus community, the Division of Public Safety issues a Crime Alert to notify the community. These Crime Alerts are disseminated via the Division of Public Safety website. Depending on the particular circumstances, the Division may also use e-mail distribution, various campus publications or the Penn Alert system to advise the community of the situation.

Acquaintance Rape and Sexual Violence

For more than 30 years, the University of Pennsylvania has proactively addressed the issues of rape and sexual violence through seminars, forums and other presentations. Students Together Against Acquaintance Rape (STAAR), Penn's nationally recognized student-operated program, also addresses these issues through its workshop programs. Penn also conducts educational and training programs for its employees who interact with students, including University police officers, coaches, student services personnel in the Office of University Life, members of the campus ministries and those who provide services in the student residences.

Acquaintance rape is a form of sexual violence defined under our policy as any act in which a person forces another person with whom he or she is acquainted to engage in sexual activity against his or her will or without his or her consent. Assent does not constitute consent if it is given by a person who because of youth, mental disability or intoxication is unable to make a reasonable judgment. This policy applies to groups as well as individuals.

Penn will provide support for victims of acquaintance rape or any form of sexual violence, and is committed to providing resources and processes for prevention, education, reporting, adjudication, protection from retaliation, and sanctions. Incidents that are reported to the appropriate departments at Penn will be addressed promptly and will be treated as discretely as possible. The procedures that govern the investigation of acquaintance rape will take into account both the need to gather the facts and the rights of all parties involved in the incident.

Any member of the community who is a victim of sexual violence is encouraged to seek support and assistance and to report the incident. Available support may include academic and housing accommodations if requested. While students are encouraged to contact the Special Services Department at 8-6600 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-6600 from off-campus/cell phones, contact can also be made through University Police emergency lines by dialing 511 from a campus telephone, by using one of more than 480 blue light emergency telephones on campus and in the community or by dialing (215) 573-3333 from off-campus/cell phones; through contact with Counseling and Psychological Services by dialing 8-7021 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-7021 from off-campus/cell phones; or through contact with the Penn Women's Center by dialing 8-8611 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-8611 from off-campus/cell phones.

When a victim of a sex offense contacts the Special Services Department, the individual will be advised of health, legal and other support services available on and off-campus, and the victim will be assisted in accessing these services. To pursue criminal options, it is important to preserve evidence. If the victim elects to go through the criminal justice system and/or receive medical treatment, personnel from Special Services accompany the victim to the sexual trauma unit at Jefferson Hospital for evaluation, treatment and/or evidence collection. The Director of Special Services at Penn is the designated coordinator of support services for individuals who have been victimized. Whether the victim chooses to report an incident of acquaintance rape or sexual violence to the Special Services Department, the University Police Department or another resource center within the campus community, the victim will be informed of reporting options, including the right to report the incident fully and completely to the Philadelphia Police Department, or the right to file no report. If requested, University personnel will assist the individual in notifying appropriate authorities.

Due to the sensitive issues involved in acquaintance rape and other sexual assaults, the victim may first disclose the incident some time after it has occurred, but the victim is nonetheless encouraged to contact Special Services for support and assistance and to report the incident.

Those within the campus community who are found responsible for acquaintance rape or other sexual violence are subject to University sanctions, which may include suspension or expulsion from the University. The individual also may be subject to prosecution by the Office of the District Attorney under Pennsylvania criminal statutes. In any University disciplinary proceeding involving charges of sexual assault, the accused and the accuser are entitled to the same opportunity to have others present during the proceeding and both the accused and the accuser are informed of the outcome of the proceeding.

The Acquaintance Rape and Sexual Violence Policy is stated in the PennBook: Resources, Policies & Procedures Handbook, which is available online at www.vpul.upenn.edu/osl/acgrape.html.

The Campus Sex Crimes Prevention Act, a federal law, requires institutions of higher education to advise the campus community where information concerning registered sex offenders may be obtained. In Pennsylvania, information about sexually violent predators is accessible at the following website: www.psp.state.pa.us. For more information about sex offender registration in Pennsylvania see www.pameganslaw.state.pa.us.

Alcohol and Drugs

The University of Pennsylvania and its programs and policies regarding the possession, sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages encourages all within the campus community to make safe, responsible decisions about alcohol that are consistent with existing state and federal law. The possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages on campus by persons under the age of 21 is strictly prohibited by Penn and by the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Consistent with its educational mission, Penn provides programs that promote awareness of the physical, psychological, social and behavioral effects of alcohol consumption and drug use.

The use, sale or possession of narcotics and dangerous drugs is illegal and is strictly prohibited on campus.

Employees are required to adhere to the University's Drug-Free Workplace Policy, and the Alcohol and Other Drug Policy, which strictly prohibit the unlawful manufacture, distribution, dispensation, sale, possession or use of drugs by its employees in the workplace. Those who violate these policies may be subject to disciplinary procedures or may be required to participate in alcohol or other drug rehabilitation programs.

Students who have questions or concerns about alcohol or other drugs are encouraged to use the medical and counseling resources provided by the University of Pennsylvania. These services adhere to all applicable laws governing the confidentiality of patient information.

The University has an Office of Alcohol Policy Initiatives. The Alcohol and Other Drug Policy is stated in the PennBook: Resources, Policies & Procedures Handbook, which is available online at www.vpul.upenn.edu/alcohol.

Disciplinary Policies

Any student who fails to comply with University policies or local, state or federal laws may be subject to discipline under the University Code of Student Conduct. Sanctions can include, but are not limited to, a reprimand, disciplinary probation, withdrawal of privileges, suspension, and expulsion; and may also result in a notation in the student's university record. When a student's presence on campus is considered a threat to order, health or safety, the Provost or his or her designee may impose a mandatory leave of absence or conditions on the student's attendance.

Generally, prospective students are asked about previous criminal records. Employees are also required to disclose any and all convictions for a felony, crime of violence, dishonesty or crime against property or involving the threat of violence. A criminal record, if relevant to the position in question, is a factor considered in the employment process.

The University's disciplinary procedures are described in the PennBook: Resources, Policies & Procedures Handbook, which is available online at www.upenn.edu/osc/procedures.html.

The University of Pennsylvania Campus

The University of Pennsylvania is located just west of central Philadelphia on a unified campus, which is approximately 260 acres. The core of the Penn campus, which lies between Walnut and Spruce Streets from 33rd to 40th Streets, is connected by a network of pedestrian walkways. Locust Walk, running from College Green to Hamilton Village, acts as both a major pedestrian thoroughfare and a hub of campus life for the entire Penn community. The specific perimeters of the Penn campus will change from time to time. As such, the preceding description is meant to provide an accurate approximation of the boundaries of the campus, but is in no way intended to detail the specific contour of the campus' frequently changing boundaries.

Student Residences

The University of Pennsylvania offers a variety of housing options on campus, ranging from the undergraduate College House system to graduate apartments. Fraternities and sororities are located both on- and off-campus. Penn's College House system is designed to enhance the undergraduate experience for all residents through faculty-directed, academically supportive environments that promote intellectual, social and recreational opportunities. Sansom Place East and Sansom Place West house undergraduate, graduate and professional students. If you have questions on room assignments or rent charges, call (215) 898-8271; questions or concerns about residential services, call (215) 898-3547; or questions about the College House programs, call (215) 898-5551.

The Division of Public Safety has regular contact with those responsible for the campus grounds and lighting to ensure that the shrubs, bushes and greenery throughout the campus are appropriate and well maintained and that campus lighting is appropriate.

2007–2008 Academic Year

Undergraduate Student Enrollment — 11,877
Graduate and Professional Student Enrollment — 12,103
Undergraduate Students in Campus Housing — 5,856
Graduate and Professional Students in Campus Housing — 884
Non-Student Employees — 20,424

Housing for first-year undergraduate students is assigned by computer program with the exception of the residential programs that require an essay. For those applications received by the application deadline in early May, the program attempts to assign students to one of their choices. Students applying after the deadline, including all transfer students, are processed in order of the receipt of their application. Returning upper-class students are assigned housing through a room selection process during February and March. Returning graduate students apply to renew their housing in March. New graduate and professional students are assigned housing in order of the receipt of their application. Room changes are made during designated periods each semester if space is available. The dates are posted on Housing's website. Emergency room changes can be made at any time upon the recommendation of a member of the College House staff.

Security

The University of Pennsylvania maintains three undergraduate College Houses (Harnwell, Harrison, Rodin) and Sansom Place East and West as open residences during the winter break between semesters; all other residences are closed to students during these periods. Entrances to all student residences are either locked or closely monitored by security personnel, and access to these facilities is limited to residents, faculty, staff, and authorized contractors, who are admitted only during certain hours and only with appropriate identification. Access to student residences at Penn is monitored electronically by a card access system. Those without a valid PennCard are considered visitors and will be admitted only after the presentation of valid identification and with the approval of their hosts, who will be responsible for their conduct. Most student rooms are equipped with dead bolt or Mortis locks with anti-carding devices.

The Division of Public Safety is available to provide seminars, forums and other presentations on campus safety and security to those living in student residences. Campus safety and security is discussed as a matter of course at College House meetings.

Use of Facilities

The facilities at the University of Pennsylvania exist to house or support the tripartite mission of the institution: teaching, research and service. The use of these by University groups is permissible, given the facilities are available, and by approved, non-University organizations under certain circumstances. Permission to use these facilities does not constitute University endorsement of the activities. The policy on Use of Facilities is stated in the PennBook: Resources, Policies & Procedures Handbook, which is available online at www.vpul.upenn.edu/osl/faciluse.html. If you have questions on the Use of Facilities at Penn, please contact the Director of Student Life by dialing 8-6533 from a campus telephone or (215) 898-6533 from off-campus/cell phones.

The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania

The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania (HUP) maintains a proprietary security department that is committed to providing a safe and secure environment in hospital facilities, and for its patients, staff and visitors. All HUP Security Officers are Pennsylvania Act 235 certified; this 40-hour accreditation process is the only recognized professional training curriculum in the Commonwealth. Security officers are stationed at the major entrances to the hospital and engage in regular patrols of the facilities. In addition to internal patrol, HUP security recently established a Bike Patrol Unit. This unit, patrolling between the hours of 5 p.m. to 1 a.m., 7 days per week, is a welcomed addition to our overall security plan. Officers respond to all requests for assistance, whether routine or emergency. An Operations Center of the Security Department is maintained 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and it monitors the CCTV/Controlled Access System as well as safety and security alarms.

In an emergency, contact the HUP Security Department by dialing 2677 (COPS) from a hospital telephone or (215) 662-2677 from outside the hospital.

Security Department at HUP

The Security Department at HUP and Penn Towers, and the Perelman Center for Advanced Medicine consists of more than 73 employees divided into three areas: Security Administration consists of the Director of Security, who is responsible for all functions of the HUP Security Department, as well as a Security Operations Manager and a Systems Coordinator, who also manages the Photo ID/Controlled Access System. Security Operations consists of 69 uniformed officers on three shifts, all of whom are supervised by a sergeant with support by a corporal. The Security Operations Center is located on the ground floor of Silverstein Pavilion, just inside the entrance to the Emergency Room. Security Operations is responsible for providing safety and security services 24 hours a day, seven days a week and it responds to requests for routine and emergency services.

The HUP Security Department, when necessary, coordinates its activities with the University of Pennsylvania Police Department and the Philadelphia Police Department.

Reporting Crime at HUP

All criminal incidents and requests for assistance should be reported to the Security Operations Center. The HUP Security Department reports all criminal activity as well as other data to the Hospital's Environment of Care Committee, which reports data to the Health System Board of Trustees on a quarterly basis.

The HUP Security Department also reports criminal statistics to the University of Pennsylvania Police Department.

To report a criminal incident at HUP, dial 2677 (COPS) from a hospital telephone or (215) 662-2677 from outside the hospital.

Access to HUP

Security monitors all major entrances to HUP during normal hours; entrance to HUP is restricted to the main entrance and the Emergency Department entrance after hours.

Security Education at HUP

Crime prevention programs and security awareness education are presented annually to the HUP staff, and, when necessary, on a departmental basis.

Penn Presbyterian Medical Center

Presbyterian is committed to providing a safe and secure environment for the hospital faculty, patients, visitors, and staff. To that end, Presbyterian maintains a Security Department comprised of two sections:

1) Security Administration, consisting of the Director of Security who is responsible for all functions of the Presbyterian Security Department and who manages all security officers, Information Desk Receptionists and an Operations Manager who assists the Security Manager.

2) Security Operations, consisting of 34 uniformed officers divided into three shifts. The Security Command Center is located in the Saunders Building at the Powelton Street Entrance adjacent to the Emergency Department. Security Operations is responsible for providing security and safety services 24 hours a day, and responds to all security and safety related requests for both routine and emergency services. The Director of Security and the Security Operations Manager has day-to-day responsibility for the Operations Center.

To contact Presbyterian Security in an emergency or to request assistance, dial extension 8085 or 8238 from a hospital telephone or (215) 662-8085 or (215) 662-8238 from outside the hospital.

Reporting Crime at Presbyterian

All criminal incidents, suspicious activity, safety issues and requests for assistance should be reported to the Security Command Center in the Saunders Lobby, which is in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Security reports all incidents; criminal, safety, and violations of hospital policies and procedures, as well as other data and statistics to the Environment of Care Committee on a monthly basis.

Access to Presbyterian

Security officers monitor all entrances during normal hours and restrict entry into the hospital after normal hours to the Wright/Saunders Main Entrance and the Powelton Street Entrance across from the Emergency Room Entrance.

Security Education for Presbyterian

Security Awareness and Crime Prevention training programs are presented to hospital staff annually as well as on a departmental basis as requested.

Tables for this Report: Pages S-6 through S-8

OF RECORD

It is important to note that the crime classifications for which colleges and universities must provide statistics differ under state and federal law. Statistics for certain crime classifications might appear to be different. For example, the federal statistics for motor vehicle theft differ from the state statistics for the same category because the federal classification includes attempted motor vehicle thefts, while state law requires institutions to separately report attempted motor vehicle thefts.

The Pennsylvania Uniform Crime Reporting Act Campus Crime Statistics for the University of Pennsylvania

The Pennsylvania Uniform Crime Reporting Act requires the release of crime statistics and rates to students and employees, and it requires that those statistics be available to applicants and new employees upon request. The rate is based on the actual number of Full Time Equivalent (FTE) students and employees, which is calculated according to a state-mandated formula. The index in the table below is based on incidents per 100,000 FTEs. The University's FTE population for 2005 was 41,912; for 2006 was 42,729 and for 2007 was 45,421.

Note: The statistics reflect an expanded geographic area beyond the campus.

The Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act

Campus Crime Statistics for the University of Pennsylvania

The Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act requires the release of statistics for certain criminal incidents, arrests and disciplinary referrals on campus to all students and employees, and it requires that those statistics be available to prospective students and employees upon request. The law requires statistics for an expanded area beyond the campus and it requires these statistics to be shown in specific geographic categories. (Note that incidents shown in the On-Campus Residential category are also included in the statistics shown in the Campus category.) The following statistics are provided in compliance with the specific time periods, crime classifications, geographic categories and arrest data mandated by federal law.

• The Clery Act defines Campus as “any building or property owned or controlled by an institution of higher education within the same reasonably contiguous geographic area of the institution and used by the institution in direct support of, or in a manner related to, the institution’s educational purposes, including residence halls; and property within the same reasonably contiguous geographic area of the institution and is owned by the institution but controlled by another person, is used by students, and supports the institutional purposes, such as a food or other retail vendor.” On-Campus Residential is a sub-category of Campus showing the number of on-campus incidents that occur “in dormitories or other residential facilities for students on campus.” The law defines Non-Campus Building or Property as “any building or property owned or controlled by a student organization recognized by the institution; and any building or property, other than a branch campus, owned or controlled by an institution of higher education that is used in direct support of, or in relation to, the institution’s educational purposes, is used by students, and is not within the same reasonable contiguous geographic area of the institution.” It defines Public Property as “all public property that is within the same reasonably contiguous geographic area of the institution, such as a sidewalk, a street, other thoroughfare or parking facility, and is adjacent to a facility owned or controlled by the institution if the facility is used by the institution in direct support of, or in a manner related to the institution’s educational purposes.”

• The law requires the release of statistics by category of prejudice concerning the occurrence of hate crimes in the crime classifications listed above and for other crimes involving bodily injury to any person “in which the victim is selected because of the actual or perceived race, gender, religion, sexual orientation, ethnicity, or disability of the victim.” There were no hate crimes, as defined by applicable federal law, reported at the University of Pennsylvania in 2005, 2006 or 2007.
