Penn mRNA Scientists Drew Weissman and Katalin Karikó: 2021 Lasker Award

As mRNA-based SARS-CoV-2 vaccines are deployed to protect hundreds of millions of people across the world and point the way to the end of the deadly global COVID-19 pandemic, the University of Pennsylvania scientists whose prescient discovery science effort laid the foundation for swift vaccine development have been awarded the 2021 Lasker-DeBakey Clinical Medical Research Award.

Messenger RNA (mRNA) innovators Drew Weissman, the Roberts Family Professor of Vaccine Research in Penn’s Perelman School of Medicine, and Katalin Karikó, an adjunct professor of neurosurgery at Penn and a senior vice president at BioNTech, are honored with what is widely regarded as America’s top biomedical research prize for the discovery of a therapeutic technology based on the modification of mRNA that makes it remarkably safe and effective.

The global impact and recognition of Dr. Weissman’s and Dr. Karikó’s work has its roots in their years of research together at the University of Pennsylvania investigating mRNA as a potential therapeutic. Their groundbreaking study, published in 2005, found that their concept—which brought fresh hope to a field beset by skepticism and false starts—could be a reality: that mRNA could be altered and then delivered effectively into the body to initiate a protective immune response. Their method to turn cells into factories that can temporarily produce proteins that serve as therapeutic compounds or stimulate the body’s immune system to attack a specific pathogen also minimizes harmful inflammatory responses.

This platform set the stage for the rapid development and deployment of mRNA vaccines to combat COVID-19 when the virus exploded across the world in early 2020. Both Pfizer/BioNTech and Moderna have licensed University of Pennsylvania technology that is used in their COVID-19 vaccines, a combined 370 million doses of which have been administered in the U.S. alone. The Pfizer-BioNTech vaccine is being deployed in 126 countries, and 71 countries are using the Moderna vaccine.

“Dr. Weissman’s and Dr. Karikó’s visionary research and persistence in unlocking the power of mRNA as a therapeutic platform have established both Penn and Philadelphia as the birthplace of mRNA vaccines, and provided us with the blueprint for a future in which we can fight infectious diseases, and incurable genetic diseases, from herpes and malaria to sickle-cell anemia and cancer,” said J. Larry Jameson, executive vice president of the University of Pennsylvania for the Health System and dean of the Perelman School of Medicine.

“For the challenges and losses sown by the COVID-19 pandemic, their breakthrough discoveries have emerged and allow us to see a brighter future for so many fields of medicine.”

For 75 years, the Lasker Awards have recognized the contributions of leaders who make major advances in the understanding, diagnosis, treatment, cure, or prevention of human disease. Dr. Weissman’s and Dr. Karikó’s awards, which carry an honorarium of $250,000 between them, were announced on September 24 in a virtual ceremony.

Michele Goodwin: Provost’s Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellow

Interim Provost Beth Winkelstein and Vice Provost for Faculty Laura Perna announce the appointment of Michele Goodwin as the Provost’s Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellow for the 2021-2022 academic year.

Dr. Goodwin, Chancellor’s Professor of Law and founding director of the Center for Biotechnology and Global Health Policy at the University of California at Irvine School of Law, is a pioneer of health law whose visit will be hosted by the department of medical ethics and health policy in the Perelman School of Medicine. Dr. Goodwin led the first ABA-accredited health law program in the United States, established the first law center focused on race and bioethics, and is the author of Policing the Womb: Invisible Women and the Criminalization of Motherhood (2020), Black Markets: The Supply and Demand of Body Parts (2006), and more than 100 articles, essays, and book chapters across both scholarly publications and popular media.

The Provost’s Distinguished Visiting Faculty Fellowship is awarded annually to a senior scholar of national or international prominence whose work promotes civic engagement, scholarly innovation, and inclusive communities, with the aim of enriching the intellectual and scholarly environment at Penn.

Catherine McDonald: Dr. Hildegarde Reynolds Endowed Term Professor

Catherine C. McDonald has been named the Dr. Hildegarde Reynolds Endowed Term Professor of Primary Care Nursing in Penn’s School of Nursing, effective immediately.

Dr. McDonald is also an associate professor of nursing at Penn Nursing, vice-chair of the department of family and community health in Penn Nursing, and an associate professor of pediatric nursing at the Perelman School of Medicine. She is a member of the executive committee of the Penn Injury Science Center (PISC), a Centers for Disease Control (CDC)-funded Injury Control Research Center, and is co-director of the PISC Training Core, which helps oversee undergraduate, graduate, and post-graduate training. Dr. McDonald is a nurse scientist, clinical expert, and an exceptional teacher.

Dr. McDonald’s program of research aims to promote health and reduce injury in youth. She has a strong portfolio of research on adolescent injury prevention funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the CDC. She is currently the primary investigator on two NIH-funded R01s focused on teen driving and adolescent injury prevention and co-investigator on several injury-related research projects. Dr. McDonald’s work is helping to refine and build evidence for a future in which we can fight infectious diseases, and incurable genetic diseases, from herpes and malaria to sickle-cell anemia and cancer.

Samantha Hill: Curator for Civic Engagement at Penn Libraries

The Penn Libraries has welcomed Samantha Hill as curator for civic engagement. An award-winning trans-disciplinary artist whose practice draws upon archives and oral histories collected by individuals and communities, Ms. Hill was born in Philadelphia, was most recently based in Chicago, and has worked with communities in Anchorage, Alaska; Macon, Georgia; and Charlotte, North Carolina.

Ms. Hill is the founder and primary investigator of the Kinship Project, a special collection that contains 4,000 candid and professional family pictures (photographs, scrapbooks, tintypes & digital images), mostly of African Americans, from across the country. By simultaneously playing the role of artist, archivist, and anthropologist, she engages communities in the development of multi-media installations and public programs.

10 Penn’s Way 2022: Go Far Together

Dear Quakers,

We are now well into our fall 2021 semester, and we could not have come this far without your patience, resilience, and diligence in following our public health guidance on campus. We’re all learning how to adapt to the presence of COVID-19 and its variants in our daily lives, and I want to thank you for your efforts to ensure a safe return as we re-populated our campus over the past several weeks. Together, we’ve kept our COVID-19 positivity rates well below those of our surrounding communities and region, and have been effective in avoiding classroom and workplace transmission.

Our Gateway Testing, or testing performed upon your arrival, provided a baseline rate of positivity among students, faculty, staff, and postdocs. Our student Gateway positivity rate was 0.61%, and our faculty, staff, and postdoc Gateway positivity rate was 0.25%. Additionally, our vaccination rates on campus remain high. As the October 15 deadline from the City of Philadelphia approaches, 95% of our faculty and staff campus-wide are vaccinated, as are 96% of our entire student population.

Even as a highly vaccinated community, we have a collective responsibility to work together to protect our campus and our surrounding neighborhoods. To do so, we must simply continue to follow the University’s public health guidance:

- Complete your daily symptom attestation through PennOpen Pass.
- Mask up! Whenever indoors, in public and shared spaces, wear a mask—even if fully vaccinated.
- Participate in the University’s required Screening Testing Program:
  - All fully vaccinated students must test once every other week (some student groups must test more regularly)
  - Fully vaccinated faculty, staff, and postdocs are randomly chosen each week and informed via email to participate in screening testing
  - Those with an approved COVID-19 vaccine exemption, and those who have not yet been fully vaccinated, must continue to test twice a week.
- Continue to be mindful of good hand and cough hygiene: wash your hands frequently and cough into your elbow.
- Keep surfaces clean: this will also help minimize the transmission of the many other traditional fall illnesses that are still circulating—including the common cold, RSV, strep throat, and more.
- Practice physical distancing when eating or drinking in the presence of others, especially indoors, and consider eating outdoors if possible.

As a reminder, all students are required to receive the flu vaccine this year. Please visit the Wellness at Penn page for more information about Penn’s 2021 Flu Clinic, taking place at Pottruck Health and Fitness Center, from October 4-8. The clinic will be open Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m.-6:30 p.m. and Friday, 10 a.m.-3 p.m. There is no cost for this vaccine. All faculty, staff and postdoctoral fellows are also eligible to receive their flu shot at no cost. Simply bring your Penn ID and mask up!

Remember—we all benefit when we do our part. We are learning to co-exist with COVID-19 and our experience thus far shows that COVID-19 does not deter us from fulfilling our academic mission here at Penn.

It is our united actions that will define our success and strengthen us. Union, as Benjamin Franklin reminds us, “makes us strong and even formidable.”

Campus Update: COVID-19 and Flu

September 30, 2021

Dear Quakers,

We are now well into our fall 2021 semester, and we could not have come this far without your patience, resilience, and diligence in following our public health guidance on campus. We’re all learning how to adapt to the presence of COVID-19 and its variants in our daily lives, and I want to thank you for your efforts to ensure a safe return as we re-populated our campus over the past several weeks. Nominations for University-Wide Teaching Awards: Due December 3

Nominations for Penn’s University-wide teaching awards are now being accepted by the Office of the Provost. Any member of the University community — past or present — may nominate a teacher for these awards. There are three awards:

The Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching honors eight members of the standing faculty: four in the non-health schools (Annenberg, Design, SEAS, GSE, Law, SAS, SP’2, Wharton) and four in the health schools (Dental Medicine, FSOM, Nursing, Veterinary Medicine).

The Provost’s Award for Distinguished PhD Teaching and Mentoring honors two faculty members in their teaching and mentoring of PhD students. Standing and associated faculty in any school offering the PhD are eligible for the award.

The Provost’s Award for Teaching Excellence by Non-Standing Faculty honors two members of the associated faculty or academic support staff who teach at Penn, one in the non-health schools and one in the health schools.

The nomination forms are available at the Teaching Awards website. The deadline for nominations is Friday, December 3, 2021. Full nominations with complete dossiers prepared by the nominees’ department chairs are due Friday, February 4, 2022. For more information, please email provost-ed@upenn.edu or call (215) 898-7725.

Criteria and Guidelines

The Lindback and Provost’s Awards are given in recognition of distinguished teaching. “Distinguished teaching” is teaching that is intellectually demanding, unusually coherent and permanent in its effect. The distinguished teacher has the capability of changing the way in which students view the subject they are studying. The distinguished teacher provides the basis for students to look with critical and informed perception at the fundamentals of a discipline and relates that discipline to other disciplines and to the worldview of the student. The distinguished teacher is accessible to students and colleagues, but also expresses their own views with articulate and informed understanding of an academic field. The distinguished teacher is fair, free from prejudice and single-minded in the pursuit of truth.

Skillful direction of dissertation students, effective supervision of student researchers, ability to organize a large course of many sections, skill in leading seminars, special talent with large classes, ability to handle discussions or structure lectures — these are all attributes of distinguished teaching, although it is unlikely that anyone will excel in all of them. At the same time, distinguished teaching means different things in different fields. While the distinguished teacher should be versatile, as much at home in large groups as in small, in beginning classes as in advanced, they may have skills of special importance in their area of specialization. The primary criteria for the Provost’s Award for Distinguished PhD Teaching and Mentoring are a record of successful doctoral student mentoring and placement, success in collaborating on doctoral committees and graduate groups, and distinguished research.

Since distinguished teaching is recognized and recorded in different ways, evaluation must also take several forms. It is not enough to look solely at letters of recommendation from students or to consider “objective” evaluations of particular classes in tabulated form. A faculty member’s influence extends beyond the classroom and individual classes. Nor is it enough to look only at a candidate’s most recent semester or opinions expressed immediately after a course is over; the influence of the best teachers lasts, while that of others may be great at first but lessen over time. It is not enough merely to gauge student adulation, for its basis is superficial; but neither should such feelings be discounted as unworthy of investigation. Rather, all of these factors and more should enter into the identification and assessment of distinguished teaching.

The Lindback and Provost’s Awards have a symbolic importance that transcends the recognition of individual merit. They should be used to advance effective teaching by serving as reminders to the University community of the expectations for the quality of its mission.

Distinguished teaching occurs in all parts of the University. Therefore, faculty members from all schools are eligible for consideration. An excellent teacher who does not receive an award in a given year may be re-nominated in some future year and receive the award then.

The Lindback and Provost’s Awards may recognize faculty members with many years of distinguished service or many years of service remaining. The teaching activities for which the awards are granted must be components of the degree programs of the University of Pennsylvania.

Samantha Hill: Curator for Civic Engagement at Penn Libraries

performances grounded in individual and community memory.

“The Penn Libraries has made it a strategic priority to intentionally strengthen outreach and engagement that positively impact local communities,” said Constanina Constantinou, H. Carton Rogers III Vice Provost and director of the Penn Libraries. “Samantha’s expertise across disciplines and deep experience in partnership-building will be invaluable to our work on campus and throughout Philadelphia.”

As part of the curatorial team in the Penn Libraries: Kislak Center for Special Collections, Rare Books and Manuscripts, Ms. Hill will bring to the Kislak Center expertise in preserving and providing access to cultural heritage to communities in and around the city of Philadelphia. While the Penn Libraries is an active collecting institution, Ms. Hill expects to work in a post-custodial model, where the artifacts of memory are not extracted from the communities that create and nurture them. Instead, Penn’s experience in processing, preserving, digitizing, and providing access to such material might help advance the goals of those communities while promoting research and teaching.

As curator for civic engagement, Ms. Hill will also serve as a fellow with Civic House, Penn’s hub for student civic engagement, centering community organizations and social justice education. Founded in 1998, Civic House runs a variety of initiatives, including the Penn Civic Scholars Program, which involves up to 15 students in each class seeking to integrate their civic engagement and scholarship experiences as undergraduates.

Ms. Hill comes to Penn from the University of Michigan, where she earned a master of information science. She also earned a master of fine arts from the School of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Drew Weissman and Katalin Karikó: 2021 Lasker Award

by the Lasker Foundation. Past Lasker Award honorees include Jonas E. Salk for the invention of the polio vaccine and Anthony Fauci for designing government programs to tackle the issues of HIV and biodefense. Dr. Weissman completed his fellowship in immunology in the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, serving in Dr. Fauci’s lab.

Seven previous Penn Medicine faculty members have received Lasker Awards for achievements including development of cognitive behavioral therapy, vaccines for pneumonia and meningitis, and the first discovery of a genetic cause of cancer, the so-called Philadelphia chromosome.

“As a physician-scientist, you hope your work will someday have a positive impact on real people, and it was beyond exciting to see that happen,” Dr. Weissman said. “But now, I’m most excited to be teaming up with colleagues to explore all that mRNA vaccines can do. We’re working on malaria with people across the U.S. and in Africa and on leptospirosis with people in Southeast Asia. We’re working on vaccines for peanut allergies. All of this is through collaboration. We find the best people in the world and ask them, ‘Do you want to collaborate on making this vaccine?’”

Dr. Karikó, too, is collaborating with fellow scientists on new discoveries, likening the research to the thrill of watching an intricate detective story unfold. “So many enigmatic things about RNA I find very, very exciting,” Dr. Karikó said. “And I am so glad that it eventually helped humanity.” On her collaborations with Dr. Weissman, she added, “Sometimes, we asked a question and made an experiment. And of course, instead of the answer, we got 100 more questions. It was very enjoyable. I would like to emphasize that to be a scientist is a joy.”

Drs. Weissman and Karikó have been recognized this year with multiple national and international commendations, including the Princess of Asturias Award, the Albany Medical Center Prize in Medicine and Biomedical Research, and the Breakthrough Prize.

in the cultural life of the Penn community. Fellowships can be from any academic discipline, with preference for those whose work is interdisciplinary in nature, promotes the growth of academic fields, and involves innovative research, methods, or scholarly themes. Fellows mentor Penn students, participate in panels and public discussions, collaborate on research projects, and provide at least one public presentation to the Penn community.

Deaths

Julius J. Bentman, Penn Dental

Julius J. “JJ” Bentman, a former associate adjunct professor of oral medicine and periodontology at Penn Dental, passed away peacefully on July 19. He was 101.

Born in 1919 in Philadelphia, Dr. Bentman earned undergraduate, dental, and periodontal degrees from Penn’s School of Dental Medicine. During World War II, Dr. Bentman was a captain in the U.S. Army, serving as a dentist at Fort Lewis, Washington and Excursion Inlet, Alaska. Decades later, after retiring from dentistry, he became an active member of the Military Officers Association of America.

He visited elementary schools and educated students about the daily life of the troops who supported the front lines during World War II.

After the war, Dr. Bentman moved to Lancaster, where he established a private practice in periodontal dentistry and served as a consultant to the Lebanon VA and the Lancaster Cleft Palate Clinic. In 1947, he returned to his alma mater, becoming an instructor of oral medicine in Penn’s School of Dental Medicine. Five years later, he was promoted to an associate, and in 1955, he moved to the department of periodontology. In 1962, he became an assistant adjunct professor in periodontology, a position he held until leaving Penn in 1975. From 1957 to 1960, Dr. Bentman also served as a lecturer in the department of practice management.

Outside of dentistry and military service, Dr. Bentman was an accomplished artist in a variety of media, contributing a piece to the Smithsonian Institute’s 1988 Tropical Rain Forest exhibit. He was also a sports enthusiast and an accomplished handyman, building and repairing tools and household objects.

Dr. Bentman is survived by two daughters, Adrienne and Mara (Joseph LoPresti); his nephew, Russell Bentman; and two grandchildren. A private memorial service will be held by his family in the spring of 2022. Condolence contributions may be sent to Hospice and Community Care, PO Box 4125, Lancaster, PA 17604-4125 or Jewish Family Service, 75 East James St., Lancaster, PA 17602.

Robert Carroll, Wharton

Robert (Bob) F. Carroll, a former lecturer in the Wharton School’s department of finance, passed away on August 2. He was 93.

Mr. Carroll was born in Dunmore, Pennsylvania in 1928. Some years later, his family moved to Yeadon, Pennsylvania, and Mr. Carroll went to high school at St. Joseph’s Preparatory School in Philadelphia. Mr. Carroll was a generous alumnus long after leaving St. Joseph’s Prep, serving on the school’s board of directors and making several important donations. After graduating, Mr. Carroll attended the Wharton School, graduating with a degree in finance in 1951. While at Penn, he was a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

After graduating from Wharton, Mr. Carroll worked as a real estate appraiser and an insurance agent broker. In 1965, he opened his own realty brokerage firm, Robert F. Carroll Co., specializing in commercial and industrial real estate. He became a member of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors and was elected its president in 1973. In 1964, he was hired as an analyst in Wharton’s department of finance, teaching evening classes. Until leaving Wharton in 1992, he taught real estate finance to graduate students and undergraduates.

Outside of business and academic pursuits, Mr. Carroll served on the Board of Trustees of the Academy of the Sacred Heart (now Sacred Heart Academy) and spearheaded its relocation from Philadelphia to Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania. Later in his career, Mr. Carroll had leadership roles at Philadelphia corporations Cushman & Wakefield and Jackson-Cross Co.

Mr. Carroll is survived by his wife, Helen Devlin; his daughters, Christina Carroll and Denise Carroll Chaplin; his sister, Mary Furtaw; and three grandchildren. A memorial service was held on August 10. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Mr. Carroll’s memory to St. Joseph’s Preparatory School, 1733 W. Girard Ave., Philadelphia, PA 19130, or at www.sjprep.org.

Pamela Jardine, Penn Museum

Pamela Hearne Jardine, a former collection keeper at the Penn Museum and a renowned advocate for Native American art and culture, passed away on April 28 after a long battle with pancreatic cancer. She was 82.

Born in Milwaukee, Dr. Jardine attended Milwaukee-Downer Seminary (now the University of Wisconsin School of Milwaukee) and graduated from Scripps College in Claremont, California. Afterwards, she earned a master’s degree and a PhD in American civilization from Penn.

In 1982, Dr. Jardine became the American Indian collection keeper at the Penn Museum. She curated numerous major exhibits that toured the globe, including River of Gold: Precolumbian Treasures from Sito Conte, which appeared most notably at New York’s Metropolitan Museum of Art. She was an aficionado of cloth materials and built two exhibitions around them, The Gift of Spiderwoman: Southwestern Textiles and The Silent Language of Guatemalan Textiles at the Arthur Ross Gallery.

In 1989, she was promoted to manager of the American collection, and for the next decade, she curated numerous traveling exhibitions, including The Royal Tombs of Ur and Pomo Indian Basket Weavers: Their Baskets and the Art Market. She also worked closely with indigenous consultants on a long-term gallery installation that featured cultural perspectives of Native American peoples of the southwest – the Hopi, Zuni, and Navajo. Posthumously, her work with the Blackfeet tribe will become an exhibit at the Penn Museum.

Dr. Jardine retired from the Penn Museum in 1998 but continued her involvement on a part-time basis, joining Penn’s 25-Year Club in 2007. After retiring from Penn, she worked as a curator at the Montclair Art Museum in New Jersey, reviving the Rand Gallery, which included new acquisitions of up-and-coming indigenous artists, and curating the popular exhibit Virgil Ortiz: Odyssey of the Venutian Soldiers.

Dr. Jardine is survived by her daughters, Shelley Hearne (Kathleen Welch) and Alexandra Jackson (James Thruston); her brother, Paul Haberland; her sister, Anne Emerson (Minnow); two grandchildren, and other family members. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to the American Indian College Fund in memory of Pamela Hearne Jardine or on the website collegefund.org.

Honors & Other Things

David Christianson: American Chemical Society Philadelphia Section Award

David W. Christianson, the Roy and Diana Vagelos Professor in chemistry and chemical biology and department chair of chemistry in the School of Arts and Sciences, is the 2021 recipient of the American Chemical Society (ACS) Philadelphia Section Award, given to a member who has made significant contributions to the field of chemistry that have aided the public appreciation of the profession. He will be honored and deliver a talk during a virtual ceremony on October 11.

Dr. Christianson’s research focuses on the structure and function of metal-requiring enzymes. In recent years, his work has illuminated complex molecular mechanisms in the biosynthesis of terpenes, a family of natural products that includes menthol, cholesterol, and the anticancer drug Taxol. He has been named an Alfred P. Sloan Foundation Research Fellow, a Searle Scholar, and a Camille and Henry Dreyfus Teacher-Scholar. In 2017 he earned the Lindback Award for Distinguished Teaching, the highest teaching honor at Penn.

The mission of the ACS is to advance the broader chemistry enterprise and its practitioners. Its vision is to improve people’s lives through the transforming power of chemistry. The Philadelphia Section is one of the largest local sections in the ACS, with over 5000 members.

Sarah J. Jackson: NCA Diamond Anniversary Book Award

Sarah J. Jackson, Presidential Associate Professor and co-director of the Media, Inequality & Change Center in the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania, recently received the 2021 Diamond Anniversary Book Award from the National Communication Association (NCA). The award recognizes the most outstanding scholarly book published during the previous calendar year. Dr. Jackson received the award for the book, #HashtagActivism: Networks of Race and Gender Justice, co-authored with Moya Bailey, Northwestern University, and Brooke Foucault Wellis, Northeastern University. The book provides excellent insight into the ways in which technology, social media, and generational communication practices contribute to social change. The methodological rigor and sophisticated analysis using hashtags as data reveals the growing phenomenon of social media activism, particularly as it relates to race, gender, and social justice issues.

“NCA’s annual awards honor communication scholars’ teaching, scholarship, and service,” NCA interim executive director Linda Taliaferro said. “NCA is proud to recognize Jackson’s significant contributions to the communication discipline with this award.”

Dr. Jackson’s award will be presented on November 20 at the NCA 107th Annual Convention in Seattle, WA.

MLK SYMPOSIUM 2022

26th Annual MLK Community Involvement Recognition Awards Call for Nominations: Due November 3

“Life’s most persistent and urgent question is, ‘What are you doing for others?’”

To Members of the University and Surrounding Community:

The Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Community Involvement Recognition Awards will be presented to five individuals in the following areas:

- Community Award presented to two residents (youth and/or adult) of the greater Philadelphia community involved in community service and/or working for social justice through non-violent efforts aimed at alleviating systemic inequalities as it relates to poverty, racism, and militarism.
- Community Award presented to a faculty or staff of the Penn community involved in community service and/or working for social justice through non-violent efforts aimed at alleviating systemic inequalities as it relates to poverty, racism, and militarism.
- Community Award presented to Penn student involved in community service and/or working for social justice through non-violent efforts aimed at alleviating systemic inequalities as it relates to poverty, racism, and militarism.
- The Rodin Education Award presented to a Penn faculty, staff, student, or Philadelphia resident who demonstrate significant contributions in community service and/or working for social justice efforts through the advancement of education and educational opportunities in Philadelphia.

The awards will be presented as part of the University’s commemoration of Martin Luther King, Jr. Day during the Interfaith program. We seek your help in nominating individuals whose work most merits recognition. Please share this information with others in your families, communities, schools, departments and organizations so that we may identify those most deserving of this award. Nominations forms may be submitted through November 3, 2021. Electronic submissions using this form are preferred but not required: Commemorative Program: 2022 Community Involvement Recognition Awards.

ALMANAC October 5, 2021 www.upenn.edu/almanac
Dear Colleagues:

Penn’s Way, our workplace charitable giving campaign at Penn, gives us the opportunity to support our community and to build community through our collective action. Penn’s Way is one of the most generous workplace giving campaigns in the region, and we look forward to this year’s campaign continuing that tradition. Our campaign theme, Go Far Together, reflects the commitment we have made to those in need.

Our contributions make a broad and immediate impact on our community and the vulnerable populations we serve. Those populations need our help more than ever, and, to that end, we hope our Penn family will come together to reach our goal of $1.6 million. No matter what you give, your contribution can provide some certainty to those facing an uncertain future.

The Penn’s Way Campaign runs from October 4 through November 19. Please join us in supporting our communities by making your tax-deductible gift now. By making a gift to Penn’s Way using the Penn’s Way website at http://pennsway.upenn.edu to enter your pledge online, you will be supporting your chosen organizations in a secure, quick and convenient way.

Our call to support others is deep-rooted and unwavering, and the Penn’s Way campaign honors the culture of generosity and caring that exists among our workforce. Watch this video to hear why your colleagues give. Then, share why you give by posting your personal story to social media using #OurWayPennsWay.

Through our Penn’s Way Campaign, we can help build stronger neighborhoods, improve the quality of life, and provide options for healthier living for all people in our region. We hope to have your continued support for the Penn’s Way campaign this year.
